A-ENERGY ADVANCES REVEALED

Wallace To Introduce City Court Plan In Legislature

Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative, said he has decided to introduce necessary legislation soon to establish a municipal court in Circleville.

He said he is making the announcement in advance of the actual legislative steps to permit "at least three candidates" for mayor here to file petitions before deadline.

Candidates for posts in this year's elections must file their petitions with Pickaway County Board of Elections by 6:30 p. m. Feb. 4.

Wallace declined to name the three candidates for mayor, but said they had inquired as to prospects for a municipal court before deciding whether they would run.

His announcement would give them reasonable assurance the city court setup will be established here.

Wallace pointed out, and names of the three may be announced soon. The announcement by the state representative came as public opposition to the municipal court plan appears to be fading.

MAYOR ED Amey voted a City Council resolution endorsing the plan, but the lawmakers at their next meeting Feb. 3 are expected to override his veto. Councilmen Ray Cook and Boyd Horn appear to be the only members of the group opposed to the move.

Amey, in recent days, has expressed the view it's something for the local public to decide. He said he vetoed the resolution only to make certain city residents had "one last good chance" to fight the measure before it goes into the legislative channels.

Explaining his decision to introduce the legislation, Wallace said:

"I feel we've waited long enough to know the public's views. I've waited to give everyone a chance to say what he or she thinks about this proposal for Circleville. And now I've made up my mind."

"In fairness to at least three candidates for mayor who say they may run if a municipal court is assured here, I feel it's only just that I should make this announcement now. In that way, these three men will be able to file before the deadline."

Wallace pointed to Council's recent 5-2 vote in favor of the city court system, and added:

"In view of that, I feel certain that I should—to carry out the wishes of the people—introduce the legislation."

HE SAID he would take that step in Columbus as soon as legislators complete their current study of the state code revision measure. Several other communities are likewise planning to ask that they be added to the list of those already operating a city court, Wallace said.

He explained the legislation he is going to introduce will go into committee shortly after the preliminary stages, and that hearings on it will be held in Columbus while it is in committee. First hearing, he said, will be for those in favor of the proposal and the second hearing will be for those opposed.

Residents here will be given advance notice of dates set for the hearings, the legislator promised.

Cleared by committee approval, the legislation would then go to the floor of the legislature for three readings before it could go into effect.

Wallace warned municipal court enthusiasts, however, that it may not be possible to put the system in effect here by the first of next year, as many of the plan's backers hope.

Legal technicalities involved, he said, are not as yet clear on that particular point. He said he hopes to get definite information on this question later this week.

WALLACE'S announcement was expected to cause an immediate stir among potential candidates for the office of city court judge.

The question of how much territory the court should cover also looms as one for decision in the near future. Majority of the plan's supporters have expressed the view the court, at least in the beginning, should cover only Circleville Township.

If this is done, the municipal judge here would be paid a minimum of $2,000, with the provision he could practice law on the side in matters not involving his court.

Among qualifications set for the judge is one requiring he must have been "actively engaged in the practice of law as his principal occupation for at least five years."

Submarine Power Plant Nearly Ready

Commission Assures Public No Danger From Weapons Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today reported sharp new advances toward perfecting atomic power for industrial use and to drive aircraft and submarines. It said there had been progress in virtually every department of its vast enterprise.

But construction work has fallen behind schedule at its Savannah River, S. C., plant where materials of the projected hydrogen bomb are to be made, the commission said. It blamed the falling behind on "delays in the delivery of supplies and equipment."

The commission, in its 13th semi-annual report to Congress, announced that detailed studies have demonstrated the American public had nothing to fear, either now or in the foreseeable future, from the blast and radioactivity effects of weapons tests conducted at the proving ground in Nevada.

The AEC said it was prompted to give this assurance because of "public concern in some communities" regarding possible radioactivity hazards to man, beast and plant from periodic blasts aimed at developing "new and improved atomic weapons."

THE COMMISSION granted that radioactive particles from the blasts in the desert area northwest of Las Vegas could be spread by air currents across the entire nation and could fall, like dust, "virtually anywhere within the United States." In fact, they've already been detected in most parts of the country, the commission revealed. But the AEC said the radioactivity situation is well in hand, and a nation-wide monitoring system will be maintained to see that it remains so.

In the latest account of its stewardship of the entire atomic program, in which Congress so far has invested or appropriated approximately $7½ billion, AEC said:

1. Production of fissionable materials for A-bombs and for the operation of various atomic research furnaces "continued to increase in 1952," and production of atomic weapons "continued at the rate authorized by the President for calendar year 1952." As it has in the past, the AEC appeared to imply by the last part of that statement

Plans Readied For 'Mothers' March' Here

Approximately 250 women of Circleville are prepared for the first "Mothers' March on Polio" here Thursday evening.

Mrs. James R. Franklin of S. Court St., chairman of the special collection program, said the "Mothers' March" will begin at 7 p. m. Thursday and continue one hour.

Residents of the city are to be made aware of the drive opening with blasts of factory whistles and sirens.

Campaigners in the "Mothers' March" are to visit every house in the city seeking funds for the 1953 March of Dimes Campaign, being directed by Joe Wilson.

LOCAL residents are asked to light their porch lamps during the hour-long campaign to show the women solicitors they are welcome.

However, assuming unlighted porches will be those of persons who have forgotten, the mothers will visit all houses during the period, with or without burning porch lamps.

The city has been divided into zones for the special project, with each woman solicitor expected to contact about 10 homes.

Women participating in the campaign can be identified by large envelopes which they will be carrying. Contributors may sign the envelopes if they wish.

Following the March, the solicitors will turn their funds over to drive lieutenants, who in turn will turn the proceeds over to the captains.

The contributions will be counted later in Wilson's auto agency, headquarters for the 1953 campaign.

Ammer Describes Version Related By Mary Ruff Following Her Arrest

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer Wednesday outlined the first official version of what Mary Agnes Ruff said happened the night her husband, Daniel, was fatally shot. She has been accused of the slaying.

Emphasizing the account is only from memory and not from actual transcript, Ammer based the story on what Mrs. Ruff allegedly told police following her arrest in Columbus.

Official transcript of the questioning in Columbus has not been released for publication. Meanwhile, defense counsel has declined to permit interview of the accused woman "until later."

Ruff was found slain in bed Jan. 15 in the farm home of the couple near South Bloomfield. Mrs. Ruff, taking their two children with her, drove to her mother's home in Columbus before authorities arrived at the scene.

AMMER SAID Mrs. Ruff, under police questioning, described events substantially as follows:

She went upstairs to do some ironing before her husband came up and prepared for bed on the night before the shooting.

The older child, Danny, 7, had told of a reprimand received in school and Mrs. Ruff relayed the information to her husband. Ruff became irritated and indicated he planned to visit the boy's school the following morning.

Mrs. Ruff, in her version as recalled by Ammer, then remarked:

"What do you expect? He has a short temper like you."

Whereupon, she said, Ruff slapped her.

Mrs. Ruff, remaining fully dressed, lay down for a time upstairs. Danny was downstairs and presumably asleep, and the other child, Sandra, 5, was in bed upstairs.

MRS. RUFF said she couldn't sleep, because of headaches, and went downstairs.

She also went outside three times during the night to feed one of the dogs kept by the family. The animal was sick and later died.

Mrs. Ruff does not remember what occurred after the third time she fed the dog outside the house. The next thing she remembers, she was coming down the stairs from the second floor with a revolver in her hand.

Danny asked:

"Mom, did you shoot daddy?"

And Mrs. Ruff replied:

MRS. GLORIA BICKERTON, 33, polio victim stricken last August and confined to an iron lung in Jamaica, L. I., hears about her new baby son from her nurse. The baby, weighing four pounds, 13 ounces at birth, is shown (below) in an incubator. Mrs. Bickerton, who is under care of the March of Dimes, has a photo of her three other children attached to iron lung beside her head.

Ike, National Security Council Hold Important Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's Cabinet was completed today when Charles E. Wilson took the oath of office as secretary of defense.

At the same time, Harold E. Stassen was sworn in as director of the Mutual Security Agency and former governor Val Peterson of Nebraska as an administrative assistant to the President.

Wilson's assumption of office qualified him to attend a meeting of the National Security Council which Eisenhower called for later in the afternoon. The council was to review the condition of the country's defenses, and to hear reports on foreign, domestic and military policy.

The meeting with the security council followed closely on the heels of another action taken in connection with the cold war.

Eisenhower appointed a psychological strategy board Monday to work out techniques "short of war" for use in spreading American doctrines through both the free and the Communist worlds.

IT IS COMPOSED of the President, the vice president, the secretaries of state and defense and the chairman of the National Security Resources Board. The latter office is now vacant.

The council's duty is to advise the president on all foreign, domestic and military policies as they relate to the security of the United States.

It also appraises the objectives and commitments of the nation in relation to military power. Eisenhower spent most of Tuesday drafting his State of the Union message. He plans to go before a joint session of Congress Monday afternoon to deliver it.

He also sent to the Senate the nomination of Roger M. Kyes to be deputy defense secretary.

He has not yet formally submitted the names of Harold D. Talbott as secretary of the Air Force, Robert Anderson as secretary of the Navy, or Robert I. B. Stevens as secretary of the Army.

The President left his desk on official business only once Tuesday. This was for the traditional White House reception for members of the diplomatic corps.

Considerable interest centered around the question of whether the Russian ambassador, Georgi Zarubin, would attend. He did, with his wife.

Dress was informal. Refreshments consisted of tea and cake.

Circleville Hit For Pollution Of Streams

The Ohio Water Pollution Control Board today warned the City of Circleville to take "immediate" steps to correct a pollution problem.

The board said the situation resulted from misuse of a storm sewer to carry industrial wastes.

G. A. Hall, the board's engineer-secretary, said the case concerned the Winorr Canning Co. He said formerly the industrial wastes of this company were discharged into a sanitary sewer and received treatment in the Circleville sewage disposal plant.

This sanitary sewer, however, was overloaded and some of the wastes were backed up into homes. Circleville officials then ordered canning company officials to discharge industrial wastes into the storm sewer, according to Hall. The storm sewer, designed merely for carrying off overflow rain water, is not connected, with the disposal plant and discharges directly into the small stream which empties into the Scioto River.

The board ruled this constitutes pollution of the waters of the state and that the city is directly responsible.

It ordered suitable corrective measures be taken promptly "by providing proper connection to the municipal sanitary sewer system."

"No, I didn't shoot him."

Mrs. Ruff then went back to the second floor and opened the door of the room in which Ruff had been sleeping.

She looked into the room and didn't note that anything was wrong.

MEANWHILE, in some manner Ammer could not recall, the daughter, Sandra, had gone downstairs to join her brother.

Mrs. Ruff doesn't remember meeting her mother-in-law upstairs. (The mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Ruff, told authorities the two struggled in a hallway upstairs and that a gun held by the accused woman was fired twice in the struggle. Slugs from these shots have not been found.)

Since Mrs. Ruff saw nothing unusual upstairs, she had the children dress.

When found in Columbus after their mother's arrest, Ammer said, Sandra was wearing pajamas while Danny had regular attire.

Mrs. Ruff left the farmhouse by the front door with the two children. She apparently did not intend to take any of the dogs, but the children in some manner took

Advance Plan Seen Readied To End War

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration was reported authoritatively today to have well-advanced plans for trying to end the Korean and Indochinese wars by denying Russia any "advantage" from them.

Secretary of State Dulles, discussing this subject publicly for the first time since the new administration took power, told a national radio and television audience Tuesday night:

"Today these wars go on because the enemy thinks he's getting an advantage by continuing the war. I believe that Gen. Eisenhower will find the ways to make the enemy change his mind in that respect so that they too will want peace."

Dulles' statement was described authoritatively as being based upon plans for specific moves, although he gave no hint in his speech as to what these moves will be.

However, in a pre-election speech in October, Dulles said Russia had an advantage out of continuing the Korean war by the fact that American troops are tied up there and by propagandizing the conflict as a campaign of Americans against Asians.

THESE ADVANTAGES could be denied and the prospects for peace greatly advanced, he then said, by replacing American forces in Korea with South Korean troops.

Dulles' broadcast speech pinpointed trouble spots of the world in a sweeping survey of American foreign policy problems, and also contained an appeal for popular confidence at home in the State Department and foreign service. He promised, with the help of the FBI, to rid the department of any Communist or Red sympathizers who may be found there.

On one foreign policy problem, Dulles had what appeared to be an implied threat of new American action toward Western European allies unless they persist in efforts toward unity.

He noted that French and German steps toward formation of a European Defense Community under which West Germany could re-

Community Vote Ends Up In Tie

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—Some of the residents of the nearby Rosemount community wanted to incorporate the area.

Citizens will have to petition the township trustees again if they want to hold another election.

State Senate Eyes Bills OK'd By Ohio House

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Senate today turned to House-approved bills to expand the state's prisons and to streamline its statutes.

Chairman Carl D. Sheppard (R-Summit) of the Judiciary Committee called for hearing to start on the 6,439-page bill to simplify and renumber Ohio's code of laws even before the Senate officially received it from the House.

Representatives passed the emergency measure by a vote of 124-4 Tuesday. Opponents said the top-heavy vote virtually assured Senate approval after committee hearings.

The 100th General Assembly, now in its fourth week, can do little except consider emergency bills and resolutions until members decide whether new laws will be geared to the present code or to a revised version.

The Senate was to meet this afternoon to receive the Code Revision Bill from the House and to act on the measure designed to prevent prison overcrowding, a condition blamed for the penitentiary Halloween night fire and riot.

PASSAGE of the $8½ million prison expansion measure would send it back to the House for approval of minor changes before it goes to Gov. Frank J. Lausche for signing into law.

The Senate and House Tuesday received proposals for a $750 million bond issue to speed construction of modern highways. The state would pay off the bonds in 25 years from taxes on gasoline and other motor vehicle fuel and from license tag fees. None of the money could be used for maintenance or Highway Department administration.

The proposal required a change in the Ohio Constitution to lift the present $750 thousand state debt limitation. Voters have the final say at the polls on constitutional amendments.

In other activities, the House: Received proposed changes in the constitution to ban traitors from public office and to repeal provisions for an Ohio militia, not to be confused with the Ohio National Guard.

Received proposals to create two nine-member commissions to study bonuses for Korean war veterans from Ohio to arrange a March 3 session of the sesqui-centennial Legislature in Chillicothe, Ohio's first capital, in honor of the first meeting of the General Assembly on that date.

Received an emergency bill calling for a $12 million loan from an anticipated $50 million state surplus to the Highway Department to speed spring road work. With federal matching money, it would finance $36½ million worth of improvements that Gov. Lausche said might otherwise be delayed.

Chinese Youthful Politics Banned

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist Chinese authorities today forbade students under 18 years old to join any political party.

Ministry of Education officials said such students would do more for themselves and their country if they devoted all their time to their studies.

Jet Bomber Sets New Mark For London-Australia Run

DARWIN (AP)—Britain's Canberra jet bomber, already the conqueror of Atlantic speed records, racked up a new official England-to-Australia mark today.

The speedy twin-jet whizzed down this North Australian port just 22 hours and 1 minute after leaving London, averaging about 453 miles per hour.

Its actual flying time for the 8,608-mile trip, unofficial so far, was 19 hours and 1 minute.

This more than halved the previous official record listed with the British Air Ministry of 45 hours 35 minutes clocked by a four-engine bomber in 1946.

A two-man Royal Air Force crew on today's flight was Flight Lt. Leslie Morris Whittington, 29, and a veteran test pilot, and his navigator, Flight Lt. John Anthony Brown, 30.

THEY LEFT London Tuesday morning and stopped en route three times for fuel, in the Suez Canal zone, in Karachi, Pakistan and in Singapore. In all they spent only three hours on the ground, the longest tlay an hour and 16 minutes in Karachi.

The pilot refused to disclose the top speed of today's flight but said they were making the trip at over 40,000 feet and using oxygen to breathe all the way.

The British Ministry of Supply, in announcing the trip, stressed that the record try was only a secondary mission.

The plane, they explained, is destined for secret experimental work at the Commonwealth Guided Missile and Rocket Testing Ranges at Woomra, in the Australian desert.

Another Canberra (the craft is the world's first twin-jet bomber) conquered the Atlantic last Aug. 26. That day the bomber made the first double crossing between sunrise and sunset, from Ireland to Newfoundland and back, and set a new east-to-west mark.

GOP Scrambling For Cover In Squabble Over Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some veteran Capitol Hill observers were laughing up their sleeves today at an open squabble among Republicans over a bill to cut individual income tax rates 11 per cent June 30.

One GOP camp was led by Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), oldest Republican in continuous service in the House and chairman of the Ways and Means Committee which starts all tax bills through Congress.

Reed emerged from a closed committee session Tuesday with a flat statement that the group would approve the tax-cutting bill at a meeting planned for Feb. 16. Further, he said, the House would pass it right away; any delay would be "over my dead body."

House Speaker Joseph Martin (R-Mass) then took a different view. He said "we've got to do some budget cutting" before the House should consider tax reductions. He said it would take several months to see how the budget shapes up.

Rep. Halleck of Indiana, GOP floor leader, has expressed a similar stand.

The difference between the committee chairman and the House speaker left Republican committee members scrambling for cover.

Several members, declining to be quoted by name, backed Martin. As one veteran Republican put it, he not only favors waiting to see what happens to the budget, but the committee should "at least show the Eisenhower administration the courtesy of hearing its views."

Some other Republicans lined up with Reed. For example, Rep. Martin (R-Ia) noted that the bill sponsored by Reed would merely advance by six months the date already set by present laws for an 11 per cent rate reduction. The ef-that it could have made more bombs if really pushed.

Four different industrial groups have told the commission they see attractive possibilities for tapping industrial power from the atom on an economic basis "in a few years."

THE AEC ITSELF feels that the development of atomic reactors for the output of power for industrial use and for the propulsion of aircraft, submarines and large naval vessels "made longer forward strides in the last six months than in any other half-year of the decade."

Work toward developing atom-powered aircraft has progressed to the point where some kind of tests, presumably land-based ones, are in sight for small atomic reactors, or furnaces, designed to serve as power plants.

4. Assembly is virtually complete on a land-based version of the world's first known power plant for a submarine. The AEC didn't say so, but this may mean a "dry-run" test is not far away.

5. AEC scientists are trying to determine whether the atom can be made to yield energy by some process entirely different from both the fission one utilized in conventional atomic bombs and the fusion process which is the basis for the projected hydrogen bomb.

6. Researchers at the University of Alabama, under AEC contract, have been exploring the possibility of developing "enamel glasses" for possible use in making lightweight shields for atomic furnaces and for the power plants of such projected devices as atomic aircraft and submarines.

7. Two new important sources of uranium, the key material in the atomic race with Russia, yielded their first production in the last half of 1952. These new sources are the gold ones of South Africa and the phosphate rock of Florida, both of which contain uranium.

8. The AEC is constructing a pilot plant at Grand Junction, Colo., to test new and still-secret processes for extracting uranium from ore.

Motorists Law Financing OK'd

COLUMBUS (AP)—A $280,000 appropriation bill to start operation of the motorists financial responsibility law in Ohio March 1 is headed through the Legislature.

R. E. Foley, registrar of motor vehicles, said the money was needed to hire additional employees. The law, enacted by the 1951 Legislature, requires reports from every operator involved in traffic accidents resulting in death, personal injury or property damage in excess of $100. Motorists must show ability to pay accident claims through insurance policies or other means to avoid suspensions.

Patch Of Ice Causes Crash

A Columbus truck driver suffered minor injuries early Wednesday on Route 62 near the Era Road. Deputy Walter Richards said a truck operated south on the highway by Albert Haag Jr., 28, struck a patch of ice and skidded.

Striking dry pavement again, the truck overturned and skidded along the highway. Haag suffered cuts and bruises, Richards said.

Homer Promoted Pigeon First Class

SEOUL (AP)—Homer the homing pigeon, carrying a message from a 40th Division command post to the rear, developed wing trouble and made a forced landing the other day. He hopped the last miles and delivered the message.

"For initiative and loyalty," said one GI, "Homer has been promoted to Pfc. (pigeon first class)."

Ohio Sales Up

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's retail sales in 1952 were up three per cent over the 1951 level, Ohio State University's Bureau of Business Research announced today.

fect thus would be to cut income tax liability by 5 1/2 per cent.

One veteran Republican, asking not to be named, said he personally might have preferred to wait, but he would go along with Reed. "Popular support for this bill may be so strong the House leaders will have to get out of its way and let it pass or take the consequences," he added.

Several Democrats said the Republican split may be even more embarrassing to the GOP if President Eisenhower, in his State of the Union message to Congress next Monday, stresses budget balancing ahead of tax cuts.

They predicted Reed probably would pick up support from Democrats who favor a tax cut for individuals on June 3, the same date the excess profits tax on business is scheduled to die.

They added that the Republican split over the bill wouldn't lessen their desire to send it to the House floor. Some Democrats figure the Republicans may be caught in a crossfire between their pledges to cut taxes and balance the budget at the same time.

Former President Truman forecast a $10 billion deficit for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Commie Force Cut To Bits After Thrust

SEOUL (AP)—A 100-man Communist attack smashed against the main lines on the eastern Korean front today, but Allied defenders cut the Red air force to bits.

In the air, the Fifth Air Force said U. S. Sabrejets damaged one Communist Mig jet fighter in a late afternoon encounter over Uiju, just south of the Manchurian border. It was the 10th straight day of air battles.

At sea, the Navy said 16-inch guns of the 45,000-ton battleship Missouri Tuesday pounded the Korean east coast off Chongjin, 60 miles south of the Russian border. Eighth Army headquarters said UN troops killed at least 20 attackers in the bitter, bloody scrap north of the Punchbowl. Another 32 Reds were wounded.

The Reds jumped off in the early-morning darkness after a 10-minute artillery barrage and opened a 20-yard hole in Allied lines. But the advance was quickly blocked in a sharp exchange of hand grenades, small arms and automatic weapons fire.

The Allies hurled three counter-attacks as the Reds fought their way back to their own lines. Only light patrol activity was reported elsewhere as a 2-inch carpet of snow fell across the frozen battlefield.

Ohio 'Statehood' Seen In Offing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ohio may be admitted officially to the Union before March 1, the state's 150th birthday.

Rep. Bender (R-Ohio), sponsor of a resolution to do that, said Chairman Reed (R-Ill.) of the House Judiciary Committee has agreed to cooperate. The resolution will be referred promptly to a subcommittee for consideration. In an oversight, Congress neglected to adopt the necessary resolution after the state constitution was presented to it in 1803.

Mother's Kidney Fails To Save Lad

PARIS (AP)—Sorrowing relatives prepared today for the funeral of Marius Renard, 16-year-old French boy who lost a late 33-day battle to survive with a single kidney transplanted from his mother.

The lad died Tuesday night after lying in a coma since Monday. He was born with only one kidney. It was injured in a fall three days before Christmas. Surgeons removed the damaged organ and grafted in its place a kidney taken from his mother, Mrs. Gilberte Renard, 45.

Another Southern Ohio Judge Talked

WASHINGTON (AP)—A study to determine whether a fourth federal judge is needed in Southern Ohio will get under way soon.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) said he will check the dockets in Southern Ohio to find out whether the case load justifies a new judgeship there. Bricker said he favors creation of a fifth federal judgeship in Northern Ohio. Efforts to create such a seat were defeated in 1950 and again last year.

Other members of the trustee panel are Crites, Brehmer, Arthur Wilder, Guy Culp, Robert Elsea and Durward Dowden.

SUPERINTENDENT Crites pointed out during the annual meeting that a total of 165 burials were made in the cemetery during last year.

"That is the largest number of burials for any of the 20 years I have been here," Crites reported.

In all, Crites said, a total of 11-112 persons are now buried in the cemetery.

'Unloaded' Rifle Brings Lad Death

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In a coma for two years, 7-year-old Phineas Prouty VI died Tuesday from a bullet wound in the head, suffered while he watched a cowboy movie on television.

In the excitement of the picture, 10-year-old Diana Lee Davlin, a neighbor, touched the trigger of a .22-caliber rifle which William Davis, Diana's father, left in the living room of his home. He thought it was unloaded.

Ammer Tells Version Given By Mary Ruff

two Boxer dogs into the car and they were taken along to Columbus.

Ammer said that Mrs. Ruff was asked at the time of her arrest: "Where's the gun?"

And that she replied it was on a table in her mother's home.

AMMER SAID the gun was then found in the mother's home, and that the weapon's cylinder at the time held no ammunition of any kind.

He also said it was this gun which, according to the ballistics test, fired a bullet dug out of the box-springs section of Ruff's bed.

Reference was again made to the possibility that another principal, yet unidentified, was involved in the shooting.

Ammer touched upon this possibility while explaining why Ruff's mother and a sister remained so long in a barricaded room after the victim's wife left the premises.

A window in the bedroom used by the mother and sister gives in daylight a clear view of the farm lane down to the highway—Route 23.

Ammer said the two women did see the car being driven down the lane, but "feared another person may have been driving it while Mrs. Ruff was still hiding in the house."

AMMER SAID the mother and a sister waved clothes in the window in a futile effort to attract the attention of passing motorists on the highway. Failing in this, he said, they waited until daylight when they attracted the attention of a school bus driver who had come to pick up Danny.

The bus driver entered the house and the women then came out of the room, Ammer said.

The prosecutor said Mrs. Ruff, upon her arrival in Columbus, remained at her mother's home for an hour or so and then went for food.

While she was away from her mother's home, Ammer said, Mrs. Ruff phoned Attorney Paul Adkins in Circleville for advice. On her way back to her mother's home she was arrested by Columbus police.

In stating she "doesn't remember" the shooting, Ammer said, Mrs. Ruff added she seemed to have suffered a "blackout."

Deputy Recovers Stolen Truck And Nabs 3 Escapees

A stolen truck and three young escapees from the Bureau of Juvenile Research in Columbus were rounded up in one fell swoop here Wednesday.

The roundup was by Deputy Jim Diltz, who caught up with the youngsters and the truck at about 10 a. m. Wednesday on Route 23 north of Circleville.

Diltz said he was called out to investigate three youths who were walking along the highway. On the way, he spotted a truck which had been reported stolen late Tuesday from Columbus.

After rounding up the youngsters, ages 15, 15 and 14, Diltz said they admitted having stolen the truck and driving toward Circleville. They escaped Monday from the Columbus BJR.

Diltz said the truck was undamaged, but was abandoned when it ran out of gas. The teen-age boys are being held for Columbus authorities.

Driver Trainees Complete Course

A class of eight Circleville high school girls were graduated from the school's driver training course Tuesday, eligible to receive their driving permits.

The graduates were Beatrice Bass, Mary Blue, Betty Cunningham, Charlotte Hoffman, Joanne Kerr, Marion Maynard, Alice Minor and Addie Wertman, all seniors.

Certificates entitling the youngsters to receive their driving licenses were issued by State Patrolman Bob Greene. The course is taught by Al Gabriel as part of the high school curriculum.

Driver Fined $20 For Passing Bus

Orville Smith, 46, of Columbus, was fined $20 and costs Tuesday before the court of Ashville Mayor Ray Lindsey for passing a school bus.

Smith was arrested by State Patrolman Bob Greene on an affidavit filed by Bus Driver James Pontius, who said Smith had passed his school bus while youngsters were being unloaded.

Flu Outbreak Now Believed To Be Waning

COLUMBUS (AP)—The widespread outbreak of mild flu and other respiratory infections appeared to be waning today in most sections of the country.

A nation-wide spot survey showed that flu-like diseases were on the decline in at least 16 states, with only three states reporting a sizeable increase.

Elsewhere, respiratory infections were running near normal for the winter period.

The survey indicated the outbreaks have been more distressing than dangerous. In most cases the illness lasts only three to five days. Very few deaths have resulted.

Infections appeared to be increasing somewhat in Kentucky, Alabama and North Dakota.

The Kentucky State Health Department said it has reports of 11,564 cases in 12 counties.

In southwestern Ohio, schools were closed in South Lebanon, Franklin and Bluebell in Warren County, and 20 per cent absenteeism was reported in Lebanon schools. In Brown County, Ripley and Higginsport schools were closed Tuesday for the rest of the week because of flu.

In Middletown, Holy Trinity school was closed Tuesday until Monday, but in other schools the number of absentees appeared to be declining.

All public and parochial schools in Massillon will remain closed this week. About 20 per cent of the city's 6,000 pupils were absent.

2 Gas Wells Continue To Stump Firemen

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Weary men battling two multimillion-dollar offshore gas well fires worked doggedly today to complete a metal boom to yank away a pipe spouting flaming gas dangerously near three other wells.

The boom was started after more than 30 shots from a 75-millimeter recoilless rifle failed to blow away the 11-inch-thick steel pipe. More firing was scheduled today but the strategy was switched because the wind was expected to shift and endanger the platform from which four Army infantrymen were firing the rifle.

One of the wells exploded Sunday and the other caught fire Monday. Both are on a wooden platform erected on pilings driven into the Gulf of Mexico 10 miles from the Louisiana coast and about 90 miles southeast of New Orleans.

If the metal boom doesn't work, two other plans are on tap. The first would be to place the 75-mm. rifle on a boat and move in on the target from upwind for another try.

The second would be to drill another well and tap the burning well at its source about 10,000 feet down in the earth. A spokesman for the Pure Oil Company, owner of the burning wells, said this probably would take from four to six weeks.

The roar of the rifles sounded like 100 freight trains and the night sky was so bright a newspaper could be read a mile away. The glow could be seen 18 miles away.

British Youth Hangs Despite Plea To Queen

LONDON (AP)—A 19-year-old Briton was hanged today for a murder shot he did not fire despite a dramatic 11th-hour appeal for his life to Queen Elizabeth II.

The youth, Derek Bentley, took part in a holdup in which a policeman was killed. A companion, who actually fired the fatal shot, escaped with an indeterminate prison sentence because he was only 16.

Bentley was hanged at grim Wandsworth Prison in the suburbs of London while a booing, shouting crowd demonstrated outside.

He went to the gallows despite an appeal by his friends to the Queen that she override her Cabinet advisers and stay the execution. Earlier, Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe had rejected clemency pleas signed by more than 200 members of Parliament.

The fatal shooting occurred when Bentley, dull-witted son of an electrician in suburban Croydon, was arrested on a rooftop with a 16-year-old friend, Christopher Craig.

Craig cut loose with a gun, killing one policeman, while another officer was holding Bentley.

Bentley did not carry a gun in the robbery attempt but under British law responsibility is shared by all who participate in such a crime. The jury which convicted Bentley, however, recommended mercy in his case.

Solons Slow In OKing Bill On Finances

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Judiciary Committee seems to be in no hurry to consider a bill to require members of Congress to file financial statements.

Even the bill's author, Rep. O'Hara (D-Ill.), said he wasn't too optimistic about its chances. "Although I can't see why anyone would be against it,"

Chairman Reed (R-Ill.) of the judiciary committee was noncommittal, but other committee sources indicated there would be no stampede to consider the bill.

The O'Hara bill would require senators and representatives to file annually with the clerk of the House and the secretary of the Senate an accounting of their gross income, including its sources.

They wouldn't have to disclose where they got the money, other than to list it under such general headings as legal fees or fees for speaking engagements or compensation for businesses in which they have an interest. The author said business secrets thus would be protected.

Big point—the reports would be a matter of public record and open to newsmen.

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his first talk to the nation on foreign policy last night, new Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was simple and vague but hinfult.

Although President Truman and his Secretary of State Dean Acheson made some nationwide explanatory addresses on foreign policy they might have won wider support by explaining it oftener, and particularly if Acheson had pitched what he said on a simpler plane.

Dulles may have felt the missed boat in not doing more and simpler explaining. His talk was extremely simplified. He conducted his TV-radio audience on a tour of the continents, showing what Communism was trying to do and why it had to be stopped.

It was when he got down to how this country was going to stop Communism that Dulles became unspecific but frankly he did not intend to go into details, that he had been in office six days and did not know all the answers.

Until now Dulles, in last night's talk, and President Eisenhower, in his inaugural address, have both spoken of foreign policy in only general terms. Being so new in their jobs, neither could be expected to unroll a victory blueprint this early.

But if what both of them have said so far could be reduced to one sentence, this might be it: In the fight with Russia this country needs Allies and will help them. That was the basic policy laid down by Truman and Acheson.

Eisenhower and Dulles backed that basic policy in the presidential campaign but criticized it as not having been effective enough. How they intend to vary it or improve it is something they'll have to reveal later. Perhaps Eisenhower will lift the lid a bit when he delivers his State of the Union message to Congress next Monday.

Dulles did hint that Eisenhower may have some plans for taking the wind out of Russia's sails when he said: "We shall try our best to stop the wars...in Korea and Indochina. Today these wars go on because the enemy thinks he's getting an advantage by continuing the war. I believe that Gen. Eisenhower will find the ways to make the enemy change his mind in that respect so that they too will want peace."

Dulles may have been suggesting this country will increase its aid to the French who have been fighting the Communists in Indochina for years. But just what kind of help this country intended for its allies was something they could only guess at from Dulles' talk. "You can count on us" was about the most emphatic he allowed himself to be.

He repeatedly said "enlightened self-interest" will be this country's foreign policy guide. But again he left the rest of the world to wonder about the extent of his meaning when he said:

"Our job is to serve our own enlightened self-interest by demonstrating by our own performance, by our own examples, how good freedom is and how much better it is than despotism."

He gave one severe nudge to the British, French and Germans by saying that unless they are willing to do more for themselves by providing a unified front against Russia, this country may not be so willing to help them.

So, although Dulles went into a great deal of detail explaining the menace of communism, he avoided details in explaining how to combat it.

The Truman-Acheson foreign policy was called "containment," meaning to keep communism from spreading any further. Only time can show whether Eisenhower and Dulles can think of a way to go beyond containment and actually roll communism back without war.

Truman To Shun Talk Invitations

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman plans to turn down all public speaking invitations for the next several months to avoid risking any unnecessary political strife.

He said Monday he wants to carry out his promise to co-operate insofar as possible with President Eisenhower. Truman said he first wants an opportunity to observe the actions of the new administration. He also said that reports he had completed negotiations to have his memoirs published were not true.

True-Blue Grouch Gives Touch Of Sanity In Our Time Of Woe

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The optimist gets too much credit in this world—and the grouch doesn't get enough.

When the going gets really rough who wants as a companion the fellow who always chirps, "There's a bright side to everything."

He's downright depressing. Give me the guy who insists no cloud ever had a silver lining. He's more fun to be with in a long haul.

Nobody really trusts a man who has a smile that won't rub off, no matter how bad his troubles. You begin to feel that he just doesn't have common sense. He is like a punch-drunk fighter jumping up and down in a brain-fog saying, "look, ma, he didn't hurt me."

It is foolish to praise these pseudo-optimists who greet every disaster with a cheery, "well, everything happens for the best." They are actually not optimists at all. They are stupid fatalists wearing a death's-head grin.

Far better is the man who refuses to take anything in stride. It is the true-blue grouch who provides the saving touch of sanity in our time of woe. He gives us a sense of perspective in our most dismal moments.

To the true-blue grouch nothing

ever can be right. God, nature and the hand of man are ever raised against him and those with him. The entire universe is in a gigantic and endless conspiracy to defeat him and his buddies.

Such chronic grippers serve a wholesome purpose. In an Army outfit often the most popular soldier is "the artful complainer." He is sure that everything is absolutely wrong—the food, the ammunition, the officers, the combat mission, and the scoundrel in the rear zone who is holding up his mail so he can open it and read it himself.

If a cloud even shadows the horizon, he announces dolefully, "when it rains, it pours." His favorite phrase is a gloomy, "I knew this would happen."

The artful complainer is a safety valve. He is the articulate spokesman of the self-pity everyone secretly feels. There is a majestic poetry in the way in which he grumbles the smallest molehill into a big mountain of injustice.

His boot strap snaps, and he holds it aloft, muttering: "That's the Army for you. They expect a man to win a war with a broken boot strap."

The troops break out in a belly laugh. The artful complainer has done something for them no ever-ready optimist ever could—given them a comic insight into their own self-pity. They know that, bad as their plight is, it couldn't be as bad as the chronic gripper describes it.

In civilian life the true-blue grouch plays the same healthy role. His vast sense of personal injury over trifles lets us laugh at ourselves. His acid attitude is a needed tonic against the hyper-optimists who would have us believe against all reason that life can always be surgery sweet, sweet.

Whenever I feel depressed I go to an old friend and ask:

"Tell us, do you see any reasons for general optimism?"

"Why, of course not," he says, scowling. "There never were any reasons—there never will be."

As he is a happy and balanced man, this lifts my spirits immediately. And I leave him feeling sure the world is better than I thought.

3 U.S. Authors Being Honored

NEW YORK (AP)—National Book Awards, made annually by the book industry, were presented last night to Ralph Ellison, Bernard DeVoto and Archibald MacLeish for the most distinguished works of 1952.

MacLeish, 60, former librarian of Congress, won the poetry award for his "Collected Poems, 1917-1952."

DeVoto, 55, novelist and historian, won the nonfiction prize for his "The Course of Empire," which traces early exploration in America.

Ellison, 38, a Negro writer from Oklahoma City, received the fiction award for his novel, "Invisible Man," a story of the struggles and problems of a young Negro in modern America.

Only Legumes, Grass Crops Up During Last Year

Grass and legume products were the only agricultural commodities that increased significantly in price between December 15, 1951, and December 15, 1952.

Grass and legume seed, hay and hay silage brought higher prices in '52, but all other farm product prices were lower—except horses. The increased price of horses was from $55 to $57 a head.

Loose alfalfa hay went from $22.80 to $28 a ton. Clover-timothy hay, loose, increased $3.20—from $18.60 to $21.80. Hay silage price on December 15, 1951, was $6.50. A year later, the price was $1 higher. Seed from sweet clover, alsike clover, timothy and red clover increased in price at these rates per bushel, respectively: $3.20, $8, $9.15 and $10. Alfalfa seed price went up 50 cents.

WEATHER probably boosted the grass and legume product prices. Dry weather in 1952 cut production and limited supplies of hay, hay silage and seed.

Corn, wheat, oats, soybeans and apples all dropped in price. Prices of milk cows dropped $30 a head. Hogs were $1.50 less a hundred and beef cattle $7.20 a hundred less on December 15, 1952.

Other products important in Ohio and price drops for them are: lambs, $6.40 a hundred; veal calves, $4.60 a hundred; chickens, one cent a pound; turkeys, six cents; and wool 15 cents a pound.

The only way farmers made money in 1952 was to produce good yields of both animal products and crops. Individual farmers used this method to reduce cost per unit, although total costs were higher, and to increase gross income although prices were lower. The fact that about 70 percent of Ohio's farm income came from livestock last year indicates the significance of the prices.

NLRB Sets Aside Timken Election

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board Tuesday set aside a labor election at the Newark, Ohio, plant of the Timken-Detroit Axle Co., and ordered a new election.

The board ruled the company made threats against the CIO United Automobile Workers Union. The board said the company told its employees it would move the plant unless the AFL International Association of Machinists won the election held last April 2.

South African Chief May Get Decree Power

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP)—Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan has asked Parliament to vote him extraordinary powers to suspend laws and govern by decree whenever the government thinks public safety or order is seriously threatened.

A bill to accomplish this was published yesterday after its introduction in the South African House of Assembly, Parliament's lower chamber.

Debate on the bill is scheduled to begin next Monday in the House, where Malan's Nationalists have a majority. The government majority apparently assures adoption of the legislation.

The bill empowers the governor general, at the government's request, to proclaim the state of emergency upon action, or threat of action, by anyone seriously endangering public safety or order.

The governor general also could declare a state of emergency if, in his opinion, the ordinary law of the land is inadequate to assure public safety.

Proclamation of the emergency state would empower the government, or its designated agents, to suspend almost all laws.

The legislation stemmed from widespread opposition to the Nationalist policy of strict racial segregation and the campaign by non-white organizations of systematic violation of segregation regulations.

ACCELERATED EDUCATION
SEVERAL PROMINENT EASTERN educators are joint authors of a prediction that it may soon be necessary to accelerate high school and college educations by eliminating a year from each.

This would reduce the traditional four-year high school term to three years and do likewise for the typical four-year undergraduate college course.

These experts, who have jelled their collective thoughts within the covers of a collaborative book, believe that both civilian and military pressures make such an educational speedup unavoidable. They urge school systems and colleges to organize experimental programs to ascertain what happens to youngsters who will have completed their education before they are old enough to vote.

Except for the unusual student, who now is permitted to breeze through high school and college in less than the appointed time if he has enough on the ball, a shortened program is likely to prove to be of dubious quality. Education is not merely a means of absorbing facts and ideas and forming principles and attitudes.

Education is also a process of maturing, of growing up, and the student must be psychologically and socially prepared if what he learns is to stick with him. Perhaps accelerating the educational timetable is a step that is rapidly becoming unavoidable. But it should be avoided as long as possible.

PEEPING PERCY

SO THERE'S A British scientist who is popping his eyes out trying to see around the edge of the moon! The moon, don't you know, likes the earth so much that she keeps only one of her sides turned toward it.

H. Percy Wilkins of the British Astronomical Association has about as much chance of getting a look at the other side of the moon as he has of conversing with a man made of green cheese. But the moon does mysteriously sway and dip just a little bit. This truly feminine action permits him to see a tiny bit more of her than she usually allows men to observe.

Under such a pressure of curiosity, Mr. Wilkins' imagination went into high gear. Using what knowledge he had of her front contours, he has made bold to map her from the rear. But he had better not be too positive about what he sees or thinks must be there.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

What most of the world sought in Eisenhower's first Inaugural Address were signposts of a new foreign policy. Most of the chancelleries of Europe will be deeply puzzled by what they have found, because the nine points on the subject permit contradictory interpretations.

For instance, Point One, which is anti-war, adds a new phase of policy:

"... we stand ready to engage with any and all others in joint effort to remove the causes of mutual fear and distrust among nations, so as to make possible drastic reduction of armaments."

Does "any and all others" mean Spain, the Argentine, Formosa? The test is stated to be sincerity of purpose, but what is the test of sincerity? Can such a moral quality be judged among governments?

The abjuration of appeasement is Point Two. We shall not "bargain (by) trading honor for security." Is that to be accepted as a renunciation of the China Policy of the State Department? Is the Marshall-Acheson policy, which dominated American official thinking from Teheran to the white paper on China, rejected forevermore? What effect does that have on our relations with Great Britain, which favors appeasement of Russia in Asia? Is this Eisenhower's reply to Churchill?

I do not understand Point Three in its relationship to our foreign policy. It seems to be a virtuous thought stuck in out of context. However, Point Four is a promise that while we recognize nationalism as a noble trait, it is not the intention of our government to turn all the world into Americans. This would be a reply to the Russian propaganda that we are an imperialistic nation that seeks to impose its ways, manners, ideas, and goods upon all people, including, according to the Russians, American movies and Coca-Cola. However, the recognition of nationalism, by the words "identity" and "heritage," is another rejection of the abject internationalism of the Truman era.

Point Five must really frighten the Europeans. Eisenhower promises aid but he limits it to "proven friends of freedom," which could omit India, which, thus far, has only proved its friendship for Soviet China. However, there are also these words: "... Likewise, we shall count upon them to assume, within the limits of their resources, their full and just burdens in the common defense of freedom." This is a challenge for the Europeans, who have gone very, very slow with NATO to come across with their share of the bargain. If they are combing these words as finely as I am, they might worry over Point Five. Maybe, that is what it is intended to do.

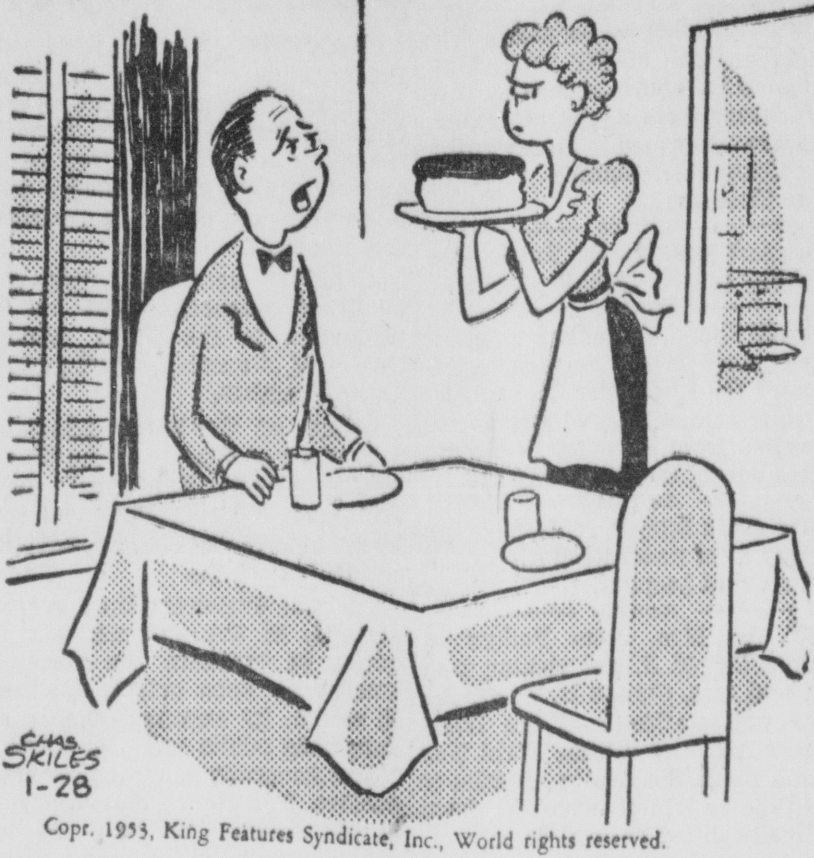

Point Six somehow contradicts Point Four. In Point Four, it was that we were not going to impress upon others our political and economic practices. But in Point Six, Eisenhower said:

"... we shall strive to foster everywhere, and to practice ourselves, policies that encourage productivity and profitable trade."

Hidden Causes Of Baby Deaths

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WE read about sudden deaths of infants almost every day in the newspapers. Usually it says the baby suffocated to death. We are discovering, however, that there are usually other hidden causes when a seemingly healthy baby dies suddenly, without warning.

Of course, every once in a great while some babies may have suffocated when they were caught underneath the bedding. But it has definitely been proved that it is hard for a child to die in this way unless it is seriously weakened in the first place.

The True Reason

When an infant appears perfectly healthy, yet dies suddenly, we want to find out the true reason to guard other infants and rule out the danger of neglect by those in charge of the child.

At one time many of these sudden deaths were blamed on a disease known as status thymico-lymphaticus. It was believed they were due to a disorder of the thymus, a gland located in the chest underneath the breastbone. With our present knowledge, as shown by careful post-mortem examinations, there is no reason to believe this gland is in any way responsible for these deaths.

As for the many deaths blamed on suffocation, studies by authorities have shown that suffocation is rarely the cause and the deaths are usually due to some other factor, such as infection.

In one study it was found that most deaths that had been blamed either on suffocation or status thymico-lymphaticus were actually caused by an infection. A disease of the lungs was present in 80 per cent of these infants.

Usually a slow gradual disease had damaged a vital organ without producing symptoms or giving any warning. Many such children who are sick will not even run a temperature.

During the first month of life many deaths from so-called "suffocation" are actually due to diffuse pneumonia. Severe bronchitis may also be a cause.

Many times an infection may spread from the lung into the blood vessels causing a blood poisoning or sepsis.

Preventive Procedure

Infants may get severe lung infections after vomiting and then breathing in some of the vomited material. Laying them on the stomach is a good procedure to prevent this.

Sometimes a child is born with a definite damage to one of the blood vessels of the brain. This vessel can rupture at any time, causing sudden death.

Deaths once blamed on suffocation may not be due to this cause at all, and may be very hard or even impossible to prevent. However, to avoid any sense of responsibility for a child's death, we should always watch that the bedclothes do not cut off the baby's air, and that the baby's breathing passages are kept free of phlegm, food, or possible foreign objects.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

V. B.: I have polyps in my nose. They are causing a great deal of difficulty in breathing. Is there any treatment that is successful besides surgery?

Answer: Surgical removal of polyps of the nose is the best treatment. This type of operation is very simple and need not cause any great concern.

For a brief spell at the 1952 Democratic convention, Senator Kerr of Oklahoma was figured to have an outside chance for the presidential nomination. One pundit allowed as how he'd never be able to carry the border states. This irked the senator no end. "I'm getting tired of hearing about border states," he declared. "In fact, I don't know what the term means. I'd like to remind people that all states have borders. Can you imagine a more embarrassing situation for a state to be in than NOT to have one?"

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

HATTIE HIGGINS plainly was not satisfied with Deborah's explanation of why Will Brent and Susan would not be at the supper. She was opening her lips to ask more when Almira Coggin came through the door from the kitchen. "Hasn't Reverend Wendell come yet? Everything's ready— we might as well sit down and eat while supper's hot."

At that moment John Wendell came in. He looked tired, grave. "Sorry I am late—I was hoping you were not waiting."

"Sit there at the head of that table, Reverend Wendell," directed Almira Coggin. "Everything's ready."

He went to his appointed chair, stood behind it. The others pulled out chairs. Deborah found Martha Purdy next to her, Clare at her other side. Agnes Peely sat across the table from her. The young people came in, gathered around a table at the end of the room. Bill was one of them. Deborah smiled as she watched him slide away from two giggling girls, slide awkwardly into a chair, almost knocking it over as he did so. Willie had been like that at that age, clumsy hands and feet, hair that would not stay smoothed down. And Deborah sighed, thinking of Willie as he was now.

"Those are my two boys with Bill," informed Martha Purdy. "They get along very well, the three of them. They were planning to go camping for two weeks up the river—Wait was going to rent a tent and a boat for them. But now Bill's working at the plant it's all off, I'm afraid. Unless..." She gave Deborah a quick, inquiring look.

"I could persuade his father..." Deborah shook her head. "Not a chance! My brother started to work in the plant when he was sixteen, so he thinks Bill should do the same."

Martha Purdy gave a little sound of impatience. "That's like everyone else in this town! They wouldn't ever think of doing things differently, for a change! I told Wait that maybe it would be a good thing for something to happen here that would shake them up good and hard, just once! But nothing will!"

"Is Silas bad?" Ham Higgins asked John Wendell.

"He's gone. He died before the doctor got there. I—stayed with him."

"Well, he was close to eighty, wasn't he?"

"He's had that bad heart for years."

Now everyone was served. Almira Coggin, as chairman of the supper committee, took the chair next to John Wendell. "If you'll say grace, Reverend..."

John Wendell repeated words of thanks in a grave, clear voice, then sat down.

A few moments later Deborah saw his glance move swiftly along the table. Was he looking for Susan? Then his eyes reached her, a surprised, pleased smile broke the gravity of his face and he lifted his hand high in a salute. It was his answer to his housekeeper's warning, perhaps indiscreet on his part, but she loved him for it and waved her hand back to him.

Hattie Higgins looked from her to John Wendell and then down at her plate. With some abruptness she said, "Mrs. Brent! Bill says you have a young man staying with you. A foreigner. A writer. Is he any relation?"

A committee of one, appointed in the kitchen, perhaps, to "find out." Deborah remembered what Will had said. She was aware that the women within hearing had stopped eating to hear her answer. She felt herself stiffening but met Mrs. Higgins' challenging eyes squarely. "Yes, Rom Barcek. He's Polish and he is young and he had a book published two years ago. No, he is no relation—just a very good friend."

A little too quickly and breathlessly, as if she were throwing herself bodily into a breach, Agnes Peely cried, "We've never had an author right in Sweethome, have we? If we got up a silver tea or something perhaps he'd read from his works! Anyway, you must bring him to the Commemoration Service, Mrs. Brent! There's going to be special music, you know."

Deborah thought of Rom as she had left him; then that she must reward Agnes Peely. She said, "I've been told that you are arranging a very lovely program of music."

"Well, I'm doing my little best!" At that Hattie Higgins turned a punishing look on Mrs. Peely. "You think so, Agnes, but I'm going to say right here and now that I think it is a mistake your letting—leaving the sopranos out of that part of the oratorio. After they've worked so hard on it. They don't like it and I don't blame them. Of course we all know why you did it!"

For a moment Agnes Peely's face quivered like a slapped child's. Then some defiance came into it. "It's really much more effective—one voice singing that part. That was the reason I made the change. I explained that to the others. And we all want it to be just as lovely as we can have it."

the news

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — The spirit of restlessness prevailing among Capitol Hill Republicans, especially on the House side, contrasts strangely with the fact that their party now controls the government and enjoys the fruits thereof after 20 years of famine. A stranger in the galleries would be justified in concluding that the Democrats had been the victors.

This attitude of concern is understandable from a human as well as from a political viewpoint. No more than a score of GOPsters in Congress ever had any dealings with a Republican President or with the White House establishment.

In fact, no more than that number have ever visited 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue except to attend the "Congressional brawl" given to the legislators each social season. To them the "President's mansion" is as awe inspiring a shrine as it is to the tourist from Oshkosh.

OLYMPIANS — Moreover, Eisenhower is not merely another easy-going politician or fellow Republican. He is a world figure, who has walked with dictators and monarchs, and commanded the greatest armies in history.

Not even the oldest member on the "Hill" would venture to wrangle with him over patronage or legislative problems, possibly excepting Senator Taft.

His official family, consisting of millionaire businessmen, industrialists and bankers, are also Olymians. Few members will have the nerve to lay their district difficulties before executives who have managed the nation's greatest corporations and financial institutions. They would probably draw blank stares when they tried to explain that a certain minor appointment or regulation might mean their defeat in November, 1954.

To use a plain figure of speech, the Republicans at the eastern and western ends of Pennsylvania Avenue were born on different sides of the political railroad tracks.

From the standpoint of party harmony and human relations, it will be an exciting spectacle when the politicians and the plutocrats try to bridge the great gap that separates them.

It will present a more delicate diplomatic job to Eisenhower than when he had to handle such primadonnas as de Gaulle, General Patton and Field Marshal Montgomery.

RE-ELECTION — Another factor behind this vague anxiety and headshaking is that Republican House members are already campaigning for re-election two years hence. Unlike Senators, they must work to return in 1954 even before they have warned their seats at the current session. It is the most logical argument for extending a representative's term from two to four years.

The incumbents, new and old, recognize that Nov. 4 was an Eisenhower rather than a Republican victory and vote of confidence. In their opinion, the Democrats would have retained control of Congress with any other man at the head of the ticket. With Stevenson carrying only nine states, it is evidence of Republican weakness, nationally, that the party won the House and Senate by such slender majorities.

Unless Eisenhower produces and executes a strong and successful program—and quickly—there may be heavy casualties among his supporters on Capitol Hill when they next face the voters. They are willing to follow him—even eager—but he must rally and revive their faint and anxious hearts with a prompt exhibition of executive sureness and boldness.

Otherwise, this Capitol Hill spirit of "doubt, hesitation and pain," to quote Browning, will build a wall between White House and Congress.

SHIFT OBVIOUS — The vast significance of the shift from Truman to Eisenhower has been reflected in the faces and personalities of the leading figures at Washington during the inaugural ceremonies and the early days of the new administration. They included men and interests indicted and denounced by the Mis-sourian and FDR. Here is a brief list of them:

Steel—Fairless, Girdler, Moses, Weir Love; Aviation—Juan Trippe, Tom Braniff, Rickenbacker, "Dutch" Kindelberger; Wall street—Aldrich, Hanes, Clay, Floyd Odlum; Oil—former Republican Chairman Hamilton and the Pews; Shipping—Dollard; Rubber and Autos—Firestone, du Ponts, Henry Ford II; Radio and Theater—Sarnoff, Paley, Fred Waring, Lee Shubert, Spyros Skouras; Press—McCormick, Luce, Reid, Marshall Field Jr., Kansas City Star's Roberts. And many others whom FDR blasted as "predatory interests."

Huge Supplies Send Farm Product Prices Down Again

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Prices of farm products are skidding again. It even shows up in lower prices on some items at the grocery.
The reason: Huge supplies.
Almost 30 per cent more wheat on hand than a year ago. Corn supplies up almost one-tenth. A record number of cattle fattening in the nation's feed lots. Farm stocks of feed grains 10 per cent bigger than last year.
So, many a farmer is wondering if the history of the twenties is to be repeated. Back then the farmer had his own private depression before it started for the general public.
That's what is back of all the ruckus now in Congress.
Some congressmen from the farm belt want to raise the level at which the government supports farm prices.
Others think the government should start now buying up foodstuffs to bolster the prices for what the farmer still has unsold.

It's likely to be one of the knottiest problems of the early days of the new administration. Farm price support will come out of tax money—at a time when most people, including farmers, are crying for economy and tax cuts.
But if farm prosperity goes sour, little by little it might spoil the boom for all the economy.
City folk think the price of food is still too high. So firm is this conviction that it has little effect to tell them—as all connected with the food industry are constantly doing—that the cost of farming, of transporting foodstuffs, of processing and packaging food, of distributing it, and of selling it at the grocery, all have gone up in recent years. The city man still thinks he pays too much to eat.
The farmer, on the other hand, is well aware of the rise in his operating costs. He knows how expensive modern farming is—the machinery, the fertilizers, the sprays, the labor. He also knows the spread between the price he gets for foodstuffs and the price the consumer pays at the store.

And with present weakness in farm prices, he sees his income shrinking. The golden decade when all the world wanted his produce and was willing to pay ever increasing prices for it seems to be drawing to a close.
Export demand for American farm products is off. Production of crops—given reasonable weather—increases right along. Now surpluses are piling up.
First to feel the effect of this are the prices the farmer gets. But wholesale prices are down now, although to a smaller degree. Higher operating expenses cut further into this, but retail prices are lower on many food items than a year ago.
The farmer's expenses haven't dropped as much, if any. In many instances the price of the things he sells have dropped below parity with the cost of things he must buy.
Under the law the government supports the price of many farm products at 90 per cent of this parity.
Some congressmen are now urging that the government raise the support to 95 per cent of parity.

Maumee Conservancy Area Judges To Convene Sept. 15

DEFIANCE, O. (AP)—The 15 judges of the Maumee Watershed Conservancy District will convene Sept. 15 to act on appointments for appraisers and to appoint replacements for members of the board of directors whose terms expire then.
The judges, who comprise the conservancy court, met in Defiance Monday to receive the district's annual report. They adjourned without taking action on any of the appointments. They did, however, select Judge H. B. Mullholland of Defiance presiding judge to succeed Chester Pendleton of Findlay.

Nominated by the directors for appraisers posts were Robert W. Cary, of Perrysburg, retired naval admiral and Toledo industrialist; Don Lackey, of Lima, farmer, banker and insurance executive; and Lawrence L. Bidlack, of Oakwood, farmer and sugar company executive.
The directors in their report said a tri-state coordinating committee had been formed with Indiana and Michigan and two federal agencies, the U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Soil Conservation Service. It will prepare a flood prevention and water conservation plan for the Maumee basin.
The counties in the district and the judges on the conservancy board are: Allen, Moran B. Jenkins; Auglaize, Jacob T. Koenig; Defiance, H. B. Mullholland; Fulton, Frank S. Ham; Hancock, Joe M. Moorehead; Hardin, Arthur D. Tudor; Henry, Ferd G. Behrens; Lucas, Harvey G. Straub; Mercer, Paul P. Dull; Paulding, Edward W. Kuns; Putnam, A. A. Slaybaugh; Shelby, Huber A. Berry; Van Wert, Eugene R. McNeill; Williams, Russell V. Maxwell, and Wood, Earl K. Solesher.

Russ Airplane Strength Is Said Growing

PARIS (AP)—New information has boosted Allied estimates of Russia's jet plane strength to 8,000 aircraft—3,000 more than American military intelligence agents figured only a few weeks ago.
This was revealed Monday night by a top-ranking U. S. Army officer, who said the new information was picked up recently by American agents. These reports said the Russians had stepped up their jet production considerably.
The size of the Atlantic Allies' combined jet fleets is a military secret but it is believed to be a great deal less than the Soviet Union's. To counter the Russians and their satellites, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization hopes to build eventually an air force of 4,000 planes.
The informant said the Russians are believed to have a total of about 20,000 "high quality" warplanes of all types and an air force of half a million men.
The Soviets, he added, also have stepped up their airbase building program all along their western frontier and in the European satellites—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania.
"They have built 70 to 90 bases along that frontier, and they are stocking them with jet fighters," he declared, terming this a "very big threat against Central Europe."
The Western Allies have built or are building a string of 95 airfields across Europe, including 30 already set up in West Germany.

County Chiefs Ask Tax Boost

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state's county commissioners and county engineers Tuesday added another scheme for getting more revenue for highway construction.
The state associations of county commissioners and county engineers submitted a plan to Ohio House Speaker William Saxbe, which they say will bring in $63 million more a year. The groups, asked the Legislature for another 2 cents a gallon gasoline tax, a boost in passenger car licenses from $10 to $15 dollars a year and a 20 per cent hike in truck taxes.

Ike Nominates More Assistants

2. Nominated John C. Allen of Lombard, Ill., to be assistant postmaster general.

Veterans Seeking McCarthy Probe
CHICAGO (AP)—The American Veterans Committee has asked President Eisenhower to order a Justice Department investigation of the affairs of Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis).
The AVC's national planning committee, at its quarterly meeting, said in a resolution it was "shocked" by a Senate subcommittee's report that McCarthy banked $170,000 in four years while earning $60,000 in pay and expenses. The subcommittee investigated charges by former Sen. Benton (D-Conn) that McCarthy was unfit to sit in the Senate. In its report, the group drew no conclusions regarding McCarthy's fitness.

Mayor's Cases Total 1,488 Through 1952

"Driving left of yellow line" was the accusation heard most often before the court of Mayor Ed Amey during 1952.

Arrests for that violation topped all others, totaling 300 for the 12-month period.

In all, the Mayor heard 1,488 cases during 1952. Amey explained that total is listed on his books, and added:

"Of course it doesn't include the many trivial disputes that always have to be settled over a period of time. Relatively unimportant neighborhood arguments and so forth have to be settled, but they're too small to be put on the books."

RANKING second in the number of cases heard were 209 on accusations of intoxication. In third place were 186 cases resulting from intoxication with disorderly conduct included.

Speeding motorists were responsible for the fourth highest case total—172. And 153 reckless drivers made up the fifth largest group of violators.

The drunken driver group ranked 104 for the year.

Hot July, with its Summer tourists and traditional tendency toward short-tempered ways, had more cases than any other month. A total of 184 cases were heard by the mayor in July, including 64 for crossing yellow lines and 29 for speeding.

The breakdown indicated law-breakers started the year off slowly. January, with 84, had the smallest monthly total of cases, and the February total—86—ranked next lowest.

How is this fostering to be done? Shall we show them how we do it or shall we underwrite their failures? If we show them how we do it, we shall impress upon them the value of capitalism as an incentive for productivity; if we underwrite their productivity, as Acheson did for the British Socialists, we are not really making them healthy. Point Six requires clarification.

Point Seven is very important. It reaffirms NATO, but goes further. It recognizes a similar possibility for the East of Asia, Latin America and the Arab states. It seems to me that Point Seven will encourage those who have lost faith in the United Nations as an instrument for peace, to cultivate alliance-by-treaty, which has been the standard method of international intercourse throughout history. This is likely to be the most important point of them all.

Point Eight might be called The Genocide Point and is not establishable by facts. It acknowledges all races, peoples and continents as enjoying an equality which in fact can be statistically disproved.

The term equality is avoided, but the rejection of inferiority can only be an acknowledgement of equality. Yet, no steel is produced in Africa, just to take one item.

Point Nine is the United Nations one, which is designed to restate that we belong to it and will continue to make sacrifices for it.

This is our restated foreign policy in outline. It will be important to watch how it is implemented in detail.

'Damnyankee' Cleric Irks Dixie Vandal

AMERICUS, Ga. (P)—Police are trying to find an anonymous telephone caller who threatened to beat a former Ohio clergyman who came to Americus last summer.

The Rev. Kempton Oakes, 31-year-old former athlete and pastor of the First Christian Church here, said the caller told him Sunday to get out of town after daring him to come down to the corner and fight. He told police the man said he could "beat hell out of damnyankee."

The minister also complained that someone dumped garbage into his new automobile shortly after the telephone call. Police Chief R. M. Cansler assigned officers to investigate.

Last week City Recorder Billy Smith dismissed charges against two of the clergyman's neighbors following complaints by Oakes that they allowed their dogs and chickens to run loose in his newly planted garden.

The minister, who served his church for nine years at Mansfield, O., and surrounding communities, said Monday night he does not intend to leave Americus. He said his anonymous caller may have been drunk.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Since you spend so much time at the telephone, you might as well do it right, lads, and lassies. There are telephone manners just as there are table manners. . . all part of the impression you make on other people, including dates. So why not make it a good impression?

For girls:—1. Resist that impulse to call your favorite date just to talk. Do it only when there's a definite reason for the call. Otherwise he'll think he's being pursued by a too-eager date-maker and so will his family.

2. Suggestion of another date should come from the boy, not the girl. Avoid asking him, "When are you going to call me?" etc.

3. Remember that it's better to end a conversation before it drags on to a point where you both have nothing left to say. Then he'll be more interested in talking next time; there'll be something left to say.

For boys:—1. Skip that "Guess who this is?" routine. It's embarrassing, boring and puts a girl on a COLUMBUS (P)—The Ohio Civil Service Employees Association today announced appointment of William E. Arnold as assistant executive secretary.

Spot. Say: "Hello, Jane. This is Bill."

2. Avoid the "Are you doing anything Friday night?" approach. It's tactless and bad-mannered. Begin with "Can you go to the dance Friday night?"

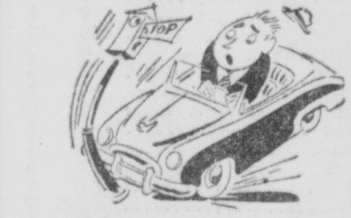

3. If the person you call is not at home, it's polite to leave your name, saying, "This is Bill Smith. I'll call again after six o'clock." And do it!

Pro Football Court Hearing Confusing All Except Judge

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Anti-trust proceedings against the National Football League have resulted in a triple reverse play.

The government produces a witness and attempts to enter testimony and exhibits. The defense objects strenuously. Judge Alan K. Grim listens patiently to the objections for anywhere from five to 10 minutes and then says, "overruled, the evidence may be entered into the record."

It's sort of like a game of cat and mouse. Everyone in the courtroom, judge, defense counsel and the government lawyers seem to have the routine down to a T, and not a T formation either.

In the first two days of this government suit charging the NFL's television and radio broadcast policies are in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, the government has been carrying the ball. Each of the defense's seven attorneys has taken a turn at throwing the ball carrier.

One thing is sure, no matter what type of offense or defense either side uses, they aren't fooling Judge Grim. Judging from the remarks and the questions offered by the judge, it is quite evident he spent last fall watching, reading and studying football from a college and pro standpoint.

He has evidenced a determination to see that both sides get everything into the record that can help him decide fairly this case he has described as "awfully important to the public."

At today's session the government plans to continue its interrogation of witnesses to establish technical data such as the number of TV stations, micro waves, geographical territories of TV stations and research undertakings in determining TV audiences.

The government won an important point Tuesday when Judge Grim admitted into evidence testimony by James Seiler, director of the American Research Bureau. Seiler's testimony was designed to bring out the widespread interest of the public in pro football telecasts.

Jackson loses By 78-76 To Bloomingburg

Jackson's Wildcat basketball team lost a narrow 78-76 decision Tuesday night to invading Bloomingburg cagers.

The Bloomingburg team dominated play during the first half of the match, leading 24-14 in the first frame and by 41-37 at the half.

Jackson picked up in the third canto, however, to draw up to a 58-58 deadlock going into the final quarter, only to lose out in the final few minutes of play.

Glen McFarland hit for 24 points in the tussle to pace the 'Cats, while Bloomingburg's R. Weaver easily reaped game honors with a total of 38.

Moore Chalks Up 4th Round KO

TOLEDO (AP)—Toledo's Archie Moore, the new light heavy champ, broke Toxie Hall's nose with one left hook Tuesday night and later knocked out the Chicago heavy-weight with another.

The back-buster in the opening round was the first punch Moore threw since he collected the title Dec. 17 from Cleveland's Joey Maxim. Hall stayed on his feet despite that first blow but never presented any threat. Moore floored him for an eight-count early in the fourth round and felled him for good after two minutes and 40 seconds of that round.

Sesqui Queen Rhubarb Still Boiling Hot

YOUNGSTOWN (P)—Directors of the Youngstown Junior Chamber of Commerce refused Tuesday to recognize Miss Janet Bailey, 19, of Akron as queen of the Ohio Sesqui-centennial.

They based their decision on reports that Miss Bailey's victory as queen of the year-long celebration of Ohio's 150th birthday was a mistake, that the rightful queen is Miss Martha Zimmerman, 19, of nearby Salem.

The contest, sponsored by the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, was conducted in Columbus Saturday night.

In a telegram, the Youngstown directors suggested Miss Zimmerman at least be made a co-queen until the matter is straightened out. The resolution was sent to Edwin T. Frantz of Cleveland, one of the three contest judges and secretary of the Ohio Civic Improvement Committee of the junior chamber.

However, Charles Ball, head of that committee, who missed the contest because of illness, announced in Cleveland that he had talked with all three judges and was convinced Miss Bailey won. He said the incident was closed, barring some strong new evidence.

Besides Frantz, the other judges were Robert C. Wheeler and Johnny Jones, both of Columbus. Wheeler and Frantz insisted no mistake was made. Jones said, "no comment."

A source close to the contest said Jones and Frantz voted for Miss Zimmerman and Wheeler voted for Miss Bailey, and that the wrong winner was announced by Robert Holmes of the Columbus Jaycees.

The Moore participated last week in the largest cruiser-destroyer training exercise held in the Pacific since World War II.

For two weeks, she was one of 26 ships and numerous supporting aircraft, comprising the operating task force engaged in realistic exercise and maneuvers off the California coast.

Employing newly developed techniques of air-defense, anti-submarine warfare, gunnery and convoy maneuvering, the training exercises were conducted to keep the men and ships in a high state of combat readiness required by modern warfare.

Wallace Issues New Warning On Route 23 Bypass Debate

Move By State Could Break Long Deadlock

Legislator Believes Route 104 Might Steal Spotlight

Another decide-or - else warning on the Route 23 bypass question was placed before Cincinnati officials Wednesday by Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative.

His new statement, though phrased only as another urgent reminder, lacked some of the velvet in his recent announcement that Cincinnati's bypass project is "losing priority" in Columbus.

Wallace emphasized the deadlock here can be broken through a special act of the legislature, in view of the vital importance attached to Route 23 as a link between Columbus and Pike County's atomic energy development.

"However, we don't want to take such action," he said, "as long as City Council appears to be in the process of making up its mind on the issue. The desire, if at all reasonable, is to let the decision come from within the community itself."

"BUT IT IS still apparent that the importance of this matter is being buried in some manner at Cincinnati. It cannot wait much longer in this long deadlock stage."

"If continued delay adds to the threat of moving plans for the new highway over to Route 104—instead of Route 23—it's obvious some action will have to be taken in the interests of this community."

"The legislature can take that action, and the steps are already well defined."

In general, Wallace said, a special act of the legislature could put the question into a referendum for relatively fast decision.

"We may be forced to take such action," he continued, "to prevent the bypass, in effect, being located west of the city on Route 104. It may turn out to be the only way we can keep the bypass around the western edge of Cincinnati, and thus avoid major damage to local business interests."

"I feel we're very fortunate in having the proposed bypass on our side of the Scioto River."

Center of the long-stalled dispute is a state offer to build and maintain a bypass around the western side of Cincinnati if the city withdraws a portion of its corporation line to make that legally possible.

THE CITY'S efforts to sound out sentiment on withdrawal of the corporation limits have been stalled so long that backers of the bypass plan privately charge organized opposition has been formed among property owners.

A third possibility is mentioned among bypass proponents. In addition to the state's suggestion and

Benson Plans Announcement To Clarify His Ag Program

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson says he will have further "important announcements" this week on his plans for streamlining the Agriculture Department.

Introducing newsmen to aides he has appointed to help him run the department, the new Republican farm chief promised additional information soon on his plans for cutting costs in the department and for increasing its efficiency.

This information is expected to go a long way toward answering questions raised when Benson, in his first official act, announced last Wednesday a regrouping of the department's 20 bureaus in four groups.

Benson has said that he will be guided by a desire to save money and to take the government out of agriculture to the fullest extent possible permitted by the interests of the nation and of the farming industry.

Many queries about Benson's plans have come from farm-minded congressmen, some of whom have been critical of the new secretary because of his refusal to go into detail at a recent Senate Agriculture Committee hearing, about what he intends to do.

British Airliner Engines Checked

LONDON (AP)—The British Overseas Airways Corporation says its grounded fleet of 10 stratojets will be flying again in a few days.

BOAC announced American aircraft experts, flown here to inspect the liners' Pratt and Whitney engines, had determined faulty lubrication caused the 15 engine failures which resulted in grounding of the planes Jan. 22.

The line's announcement said suspicions of sabotage had been ruled out.

the steps outlined by Wallace, it is believed the state might be induced to accept the city's "consent"—if granted here—to put the bypass through the western side of the city area.

However, when this plan was first studied, state highway department officials warned the city would have to meet a substantial portion of the costs under such an arrangement. And councilmen later seemed convinced Cincinnati can't afford such a plan.

State officials have given no encouragement to the hope they would accept the "consent" procedure and waive the city's financial responsibility.

Wallace quoted S. O. Linzell, state highways department director, as follows:

"We haven't any money at this time for the bypass project. We can't get the money until we have a plan. We can't have a plan until the matter is straightened out at Cincinnati."

Rubinstein Wins Round In Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—Serge Rubinstein, rich Russian-born financier, is safe from being taken to Ellis Island at least until Feb. 27.

The U. S. Court of Appeals, dividing 2-1, late Monday ordered that no steps be taken toward seizing Rubinstein pending further arguments in his case. This was the fourth time in four weeks the court had intervened to prevent Rubinstein from being taken into custody on a deportation warrant growing out of his World War II conviction of draft dodging.

Ike Aides Delay Oil Firm Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration Tuesday delayed for 90 days a grand jury investigation into an alleged world oil monopoly.

This was done to permit the new attorney general, Herbert Brownell Jr., to give further consideration to the case.

U. S. District Judge James R. Kirkland signed an order, requested by government counsel, putting off the grand jury investigation.

County Co-Ops Plan Annual Meeting Here

Plans have been completed for the 1953 annual Pickaway County Farm Bureau and Pickaway Livestock Co-op meeting.

This is the biggest event of the year for the two organizations. The meeting is set for 10 a. m. Saturday in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum. All indications point to a larger turnout than the 600 who attended last year.

Chester Noecker of Ashville, chairman of the program committee, said that an outstanding and enjoyable program has been planned for the day.

The committee has secured Mrs. Litta K. Roberson, Ohio Farm Bureau woman's director, and the Rev. Howard E. Mumaw of Broad Street Methodist church, Columbus. The Rev. Mr. Mumaw has traveled throughout Europe and will address the members on "Let's Keep America Free."

SPECIAL MUSICAL numbers will be given under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Dunkle, and the Salt Creek Township High School band will play under the direction of Wilbur Shaw.

The 1953 Pickaway County Farm

Bureau program will be built around the resolutions and policy adopted by the members during this annual meeting.

There will also be reports of progress through the year, discussion of plans and election of directors for the Pickaway Livestock Co-op and the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. Mrs. Leora Sayre, home demonstration agent and chairman of the barbecue committee, said plans are completed for the annual Farm Bureau 'Bar-B-Que' to be served at noon.

Wallace To Introduce City Court Plan In Legislature

Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative, said he has decided to introduce necessary legislation soon to establish a municipal court in Circleville.

He said he is making the announcement in advance of the actual legislative steps to permit "at least three candidates" for mayor here to file petitions before deadline.

Candidates for posts in this year's elections must file their petitions with Pickaway County Board of Elections by 6:30 p. m. Feb. 4.

Wallace declined to name the three candidates for mayor, but said they had inquired as to prospects for a municipal court before deciding whether they would run.

His announcement would give them reasonable assurance the city court setup will be established here,

State Senate Eyes Bills OK'd By Ohio House

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Senate today turned to House-approved bills to expand the state's prisons and to streamline its statutes.

Chairman Carl D. Sheppard (R-Summit) of the Judiciary Committee called for hearing to start on the 6,439-page bill to simplify and renumber Ohio's code of laws even before the Senate officially received it from the House.

Representatives passed the emergency measure by a vote of 24-4 Tuesday. Proponents said the top-heavy vote virtually assured Senate approval after committee hearings.

The 100th General Assembly, now in its fourth week, can do little except consider emergency bills and resolutions until members decide whether new laws will be geared to the present code or to a revised version.

The Senate was to meet this afternoon to receive the Code Revision Bill from the House and to act on the measure designed to prevent prison overcrowding, a condition blamed for the penitentiary Halloween night fire and riot.

PASSAGE OF THE $8½ million prison expansion measure would send it back to the House for approval of minor changes before it goes to Gov. Frank J. Lausche for signing into law.

The Senate and House Tuesday received proposals for a $750 million bond issue to speed construction of modern highways. The state would pay off the bonds in 25 years from taxes on gasoline and other motor vehicle fuel and from license fees. None of the money could be used for maintenance or Highway Department administration.

The proposal required a change in the Ohio Constitution to lift the present $750 thousand state debt limitation. Voters have the final say at the polls on constitutional amendments.

In other activities, the House: Received proposed changes in the constitution to ban traitors from public office and to repeal provisions for an Ohio militia, not to be confused with the Ohio National Guard.

Received proposals to create two nine-member commissions to study bonuses for Korean war veterans from Ohio to arrange a March 3 session of the sesqui-centennial Legislature in Chillicothe, Ohio's first capital, in honor of the first meeting of the General Assembly on that date.

Received an emergency bill calling for a $12 million loan from an anticipated $50 million state surplus to the Highway Department to speed spring road work. With federal matching money, it would finance 36½ million worth of improvements that Gov. Lausche said might otherwise be delayed.

Chinese Youthful Politics Banned

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist Chinese authorities today forbade students under 18 years old to join any political party.

Ministry of Education officials said such students would do more for themselves and their country if they devoted all their time to their studies.

Wallace pointed out, and names of the three may be announced soon. The announcement by the state representative came as public opposition to the municipal court plan appears to be fading.

MAYOR ED Amey vetoed a City Council resolution endorsing the plan, but the lawmakers at their next meeting Feb. 3 are expected to override his veto. Councilmen Ray Cook and Boyd Horn appear to be the only members of the group opposed to the move.

Amy, in recent days, has expressed the view it's something for the local public to decide. He said he vetoed the resolution only to make certain city residents had "one last good chance" to fight the measure before it goes into the legislative channels.

Explaining his decision to introduce the legislation, Wallace said: "I feel we've waited long enough to know the public's views. I've waited to give everyone a chance to say what he or she thinks about this proposal for Circleville. And now I've made up my mind."

"In fairness to at least three candidates for mayor who say they may run if a municipal court is assured here, I feel it's only just that I should make this announcement now. In that way, these three men will be able to file before the deadline."

Wallace pointed to Council's recent 5-2 vote in favor of the city court system, and added: "In view of that, I feel certain that I should—to carry out the wishes of the people—introduce the legislation."

HE SAID he would take that step in Columbus as soon as legislators complete their current study of the state code revision measure. Several other communities are likewise planning to ask that they be added to the list of those already operating a city court, Wallace said.

He explained the legislation he is going to introduce will go into committee shortly after the preliminary stages, and that hearings on it will be held in Columbus while it is in committee. First hearing, he said, will be for those in favor of the proposal and the second hearing will be for those opposed.

Residents here will be given advance notice of dates set for the hearings, the legislator promised.

Cleared by committee approval, the legislation would then go to the floor of the legislature for three readings before it could go into effect.

Wallace warned municipal court enthusiasts, however, that it may not be possible to put the system in effect here by the first of next year, as many of the plan's backers hope.

Legal technicalities involved, he said, are not as yet clear on that particular point. He said he hopes to get definite information on this question later this week.

WALLACE'S announcement was expected to cause an immediate stir among potential candidates for the office of city court judge.

The question of how much territory the court should cover also looms as one for decision in the near future. Majority of the plan's supporters have expressed the view the court, at least in the beginning, should cover only Circleville Township.

If this is done, the municipal judge here would be paid a minimum of $2,000, with the provision he could practice law on the side in matters not involving his court.

Among qualifications set for the judge is one requiring he must have been "actively engaged in the practice of law as his principal occupation for at least five years."

THE LEFT London Tuesday morning and stopped en route three times for fuel, in the Suez Canal zone, in Karachi, Pakistan and in Singapore. In all they spent only three hours on the ground, the longest stay an hour and 16 minutes in Karachi.

The pilot refused to disclose the top speed of today's flight but said they were making the trip at over 40,000 feet and using oxygen to breathe all the way.

The British Ministry of Supply, in announcing the trip, stressed that the record try was only a secondary mission.

The plane, they explained, is destined for secret experimental work at the Commonwealth Guided Missile and Rocket Testing Ranges at Woomera, in the Australian desert.

Another Canberra (the craft is the world's first twin-jet bomber) conquered the Atlantic last Aug. 26. That day the bomber made the first double crossing between sunrise and sunset, from Ireland to Newfoundland and back, and set a new east-to-west mark.

Submarine Power Plant Nearly Ready

Commission Assures Public No Danger From Weapons Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today reported sharp new advances toward perfecting atomic power for industrial use and to drive aircraft and submarines. It said there had been progress in virtually every department of its vast enterprise.

But construction work has fallen behind schedule at its Savannah River, S. C., plant where materials of the projected hydrogen bomb are to be made, the commission said. It blamed the falling behind on "delays in the delivery of supplies and equipment."

The commission, in its 13th semi-annual report to Congress, announced that detailed studies have demonstrated the American public had nothing to fear, either now or in the foreseeable future, from the blast and radioactivity effects of weapons tests conducted at the proving ground in Nevada.

The AEC said it was prompted to give this assurance because of "public concern in some communities" regarding possible radioactive hazards to man, beast and plant from periodic blasts aimed at developing "new and improved atomic weapons."

THE COMMISSION granted that radioactive particles from the blasts in the desert area northwest of Las Vegas could be spread by air currents across the entire nation and could fall, like dust, "virtually anywhere within the United States." In fact, they've already been detected in most parts of the country, the commission revealed.

But the AEC said the radioactivity situation is well in hand, and a nation-wide monitoring system will be maintained to see that it remains so.

In the latest account of its stewardship of the entire atomic program, in which Congress so far has invested or appropriated approximately $7½ billion, AEC said:

1. Production of fissionable materials for A-bombs and for the operation of various atomic research furnaces "continued to increase in 1952," and production of atomic weapons "continued at the rate authorized by the President for calendar year 1952." As it has in the past, the AEC appeared to imply by the last part of that statement

Approximately 250 women of Circleville are prepared for the first "Mothers' March on Polio" here Thursday evening.

Mrs. James R. Franklin of S. Court St., chairman of the special collection program, said the "Mothers' March" will begin at 7 p. m. Thursday and continue one hour.

Residents of the city are to be made aware of the drive opening with blasts of factory whistles and sirens.

Campaigners in the "Mothers' March" are to visit every house in the city seeking funds for the 1953 March of Dime Campaign, being directed by Joe Wilson.

LOCAL residents are asked to light their porch lamps during the hour-long campaign to show the women solicitors they are welcome.

However, assuming unlighted porches will be those of persons who have forgotten, the mothers will visit all houses during the period, with or without burning porch lamps.

The city has been divided into zones for the special project, with each woman solicitor expected to contact about 10 homes.

Women participating in the campaign can be identified by large envelopes which they will be carrying. Contributors may sign the envelopes if they wish.

Following the March, the solicitors will turn their funds over to drive lieutenants, who in turn will turn the proceeds over to the captains.

The contributions will be counted later in Wilson's auto agency, headquarters for the 1953 campaign.

Flash Fire Hits Tokyo Night Club

TOKYO (AP)—One man was killed and 72 persons were injured today when a flash fire destroyed one of Tokyo's swankiest night clubs and two adjoining restaurants. Police said 22 of the injured are in critical condition.

Japanese and Western patrons were lingering over cocktails in the Gimbarsha (Silver Coach) when a boiler blew up in a chocolate shop below. Firemen brought the fire under control in about an hour. Police estimated damage at $200,000.

Ammer Describes Version Related By Mary Ruff Following Her Arrest

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer Wednesday outlined the first official version of what Mary Agnes Ruff said happened the night her husband, Daniel, was fatally shot. She has been accused of the slaying.

Emphasizing the account is only from memory and not from actual transcript, Ammer based the story on what Mrs. Ruff allegedly told police following her arrest in Columbus.

Official transcript of the questioning in Columbus has not been released for publication. Meanwhile, defense counsel has declined to permit interview of the accused woman "until later."

Ruff was found slain in bed Jan. 15 in the farm home of the couple near South Bloomfield. Mrs. Ruff, taking their two children with her, drove to her mother's home in Columbus before authorities arrived at the scene.

AMMER SAID Mrs. Ruff, under police questioning, described events substantially as follows:

She went upstairs to do some ironing before her husband came up and prepared for bed on the night before the shooting.

The older child, Danny, 7, had told of a reprimand received in school and Mrs. Ruff relayed the information to her husband. Ruff became irritated and indicated he planned to visit the boy's school the following morning.

Mrs. Ruff, in her version as recalled by Ammer, then remarked: "What do you expect? He has a short temper like you."

Whereupon, she said, Ruff slapped her.

Mrs. Ruff, remaining fully dressed, lay down for a time upstairs. Danny was downstairs and presumably asleep, and the other child, Sandra, 5, was in bed upstairs.

MRS. RUFF said she couldn't sleep, because of headaches, and went downstairs.

She also went outside three times during the night to feed one of the dogs kept by the family. The animal was sick and later died.

Mrs. Ruff does not remember what occurred after the third time she fed the dog outside the house. The next thing she remembers, she was coming down the stairs from the second floor with a revolver in her hand.

Danny asked: "Mom, did you shoot daddy?" And Mrs. Ruff replied:

"No, I didn't shoot him."

Mrs. Ruff then went back to the second floor and opened the door of the room in which Ruff had been sleeping.

She looked into the room and didn't note that anything was wrong.

MEANWHILE, in some manner Ammer could not recall, the daughter, Sandra, had gone downstairs to join her brother.

Mrs. Ruff doesn't remember meeting her mother-in-law upstairs. (The mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Ruff, told authorities the two struggled in a hallway upstairs and that a gun held by the accused woman was fired twice in the struggle. Slugs from these shots have not been found.)

Since Mrs. Ruff saw nothing unusual upstairs, she had the children dress.

When found in Columbus after their mother's arrest, Ammer said, Sandra was wearing pajamas while Danny had regular attire.

Mrs. Ruff left the farmhouse by the front door with the two children. She apparently did not intend to take any of the dogs, but the children in some manner took

Advance Plan Seen Readied To End War

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration was reported authoritatively today to have advanced plans for trying to end the Korean and Indochinese wars by denying Russia any "advantage" from them.

Secretary of State Dulles, discussing this subject publicly for the first time since the new administration took power, told a national radio and television audience Tuesday night:

"Today these wars go on because the enemy thinks he's getting an advantage by continuing the war. I believe that Gen. Eisenhower will find the ways to make the enemy change his mind in that respect so that they too will want peace."

Dulles' statement was described authoritatively as being based upon plans for specific moves, although he gave no hint in his speech as to what these moves will be.

However, in a pre-election speech in October, Dulles said Russia had an advantage out of continuing the Korean war by the fact that American troops are tied up there and by propagandizing the conflict as a campaign of Americans against Asians.

THESE ADVANTAGES could be denied and the prospects for peace greatly advanced, he then said, by replacing American forces in Korea with South Korean troops.

Dulles' broadcast speech pinpointed trouble spots of the world in a sweeping survey of American foreign policy problems, and also contained an appeal for popular confidence at home in the State Department and foreign service. He promised, with the help of the FBI, to rid the department of any Communist or Red sympathizers who may be found there.

On one foreign policy problem, Dulles had what appeared to be an implied threat of new American action toward Western European allies unless they persist in efforts toward unity.

He noted that French and German steps toward formation of a European Defense Community under which West Germany could re-

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Pastors' Convention today will consider resolutions on gambling and vice, public education and academic freedom, civil rights and motion picture censorship.

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) was to fly to Cleveland today to address a testimonial dinner for Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver.

CHICAGO (AP)—Grant Stone, advertising director of the Cleveland Press, was named a director of the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Jackson Betts of Ohio is the new president of the 82nd Club, a group of second term Republican congressmen. He was elected Tuesday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) told a delegation from the Oberlin YMCA and YWCA Tuesday he feels America should continue to admit politically-oppressed persons.

At the same time, Harold E. Stassen was sworn in as director of the Mutual Security Agency and former governor Val Peterson of Nebraska as an administrative assistant to the President.

Wilson's assumption of office qualified him to attend a meeting of the National Security Council which Eisenhower called for later in the afternoon. The council was to review the condition of the country's defenses, and to hear reports on foreign, domestic and military policy.

The meeting with the security council followed closely on the heels of another action taken in connection with the cold war.

Eisenhower appointed a psychological strategy board Monday to work out techniques "short of war" for use in spreading American doctrines through both the free and the Communist worlds.

IT IS COMPOSED of the President, the vice president, the secretaries of state and defense and the chairman of the National Security Resources Board. The latter office is now vacant.

The council's duty is to advise the president on all foreign, domestic and military policies as they relate to the security of the United States.

It also appraises the objectives and commitments of the nation in relation to military power.

Eisenhower spent most of Tuesday drafting his State of the Union message. He plans to go before a joint session of Congress Monday afternoon to deliver it.

He also sent to the Senate the nomination of Roger M. Kyes to be deputy defense secretary.

He has not yet formally submitted the names of Harold D. Talbott as secretary of the Air Force, Robert Anderson as secretary of the Navy, or Robert I. B. Stevens as secretary of the Army.

Gov. Scrambling For Cover In Squabble Over Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some veteran Capitol Hill observers were laughing up their sleeves today at an open squabble among Republicans over a bill to cut individual income tax rates 11 per cent June 30.

One GOP camp was led by Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.), oldest Republican in continuous service in the House and chairman of the Ways and Means Committee which starts all tax bills through Congress.

Reed emerged from a closed committee session Tuesday with a flat statement that the group would approve the tax-cutting bill at a meeting planned for Feb. 16. Further, he said, the House would pass it right away; any delay would be "over my dead body."

House Speaker Joseph Martin (R-Mass.) then took a different view. He said "we've got to do some budget cutting" before the House should consider tax reductions. He said it would take several months to see how the budget shapes up.

Rep. Halleck of Indiana, GOP floor leader, has expressed a similar stand.

The difference between the committee chairman and the House speaker left Republican committee members scrambling for cover.

Several members, declining to be quoted by name, backed Martin. As one veteran Republican put it, he not only favors waiting to see what happens to the budget, but the committee should "at least show the Eisenhower administration the courtesy of hearing its views."

Some other Republicans lined up with Reed. For example, Rep. Martin (R-Ia) noted that the bill sponsored by Reed would merely advance by six months the date already set by present laws for an 11 per cent rate reduction. The effect that it could have made more bombs if really pushed.

2. Four different industrial groups have told the commission they see attractive possibilities for tapping industrial power from the atom on an economic basis "in a few years."

THE AEC ITSELF feels that the development of atomic reactors for the output of power for industrial use and for the propulsion of aircraft, submarines and large naval vessels "made longer forward strides in the last six months than in any other half-year of the decade."

3. Work toward developing atom-powered aircraft has progressed to the point where some kind of tests, presumably land-based ones, are in sight for small atomic reactors, or furnaces, designed to serve as power plants.

4. Assembly is virtually complete on a land-based version of the world's first known power plant for a submarine. The AEC didn't say so, but this may mean a "dry-run" test is not far away.

5. AEC scientists are trying to determine whether the atom can be made to yield energy by some process entirely different from both the fission one utilized in conventional atomic bombs and the fusion process which is the basis for the projected hydrogen bomb.

6. Researchers at the University of Alabama, under AEC contract, have been exploring the possibility of developing "enamel glasses" for possible use in making lightweight shields for atomic furnaces and for the power plants of such projected devices as atomic aircraft and submarines.

7. Two new important sources of uranium, the key material in the atomic race with Russia, yielded their first production in the last half of 1952. These new sources are the gold ones of South Africa and the phosphate rock of Florida, both of which contain uranium.

8. The AEC is constructing a pilot plant at Grand Junction, Colo. to test new and still-secret processes for extracting uranium from ore.

Motorists Law Financing OK

COLUMBUS (AP)—A $280,000 appropriation bill to start operation of the motorists financial responsibility law in Ohio March 1 is headed through the Legislature.

R. E. Foley, registrar of motor vehicles, said the money was needed to hire additional employees. The law, enacted by the 1951 Legislature, requires reports from every operator involved in traffic accidents resulting in death, personal injury or property damage in excess of $100. Motorists must show ability to pay accident claims through insurance policies or other means to avoid suspensions.

Cemetery Group Reelects Crites During Session

H. M. Crites of Circleville Route 3 was reelected president of the board of trustees of Circleville's Forest Cemetery Association Tuesday night during an annual meeting in Pickaway Courthouse.

Robert L. Brehmer was reelected vice-president during the session; Edson Crites was elected superintendent and secretary for his 21st year; and Mary Ebert was named secretary.

During Tuesday's session, Attorney Tom A. Renick was named to the panel of trustees to fill a vacancy created by the death of Veteran Attorney Clinton Leist.

Other members of the trustee panel are Crites, Brehmer, Arthur Wilder, Guy Culp, Robert Elisea and Durward Dowden.

SUPERINTENDENT Crites pointed out during the annual meeting that a total of 165 burials were made in the cemetery during last year.

"That is the largest number of burials for any of the 20 years I have been here," Crites reported. In all, Crites said, a total of 11-12 persons are now buried in the cemetery.

'Unloaded' Rifle Brings Lad Death

two Boxer dogs into the car and they were taken along to Columbus.

Ammer said that Mrs. Ruff was asked at the time of her arrest: "Where's the gun?"

And that she replied it was on a table in her mother's home.

AMMER SAID the gun was then found in the mother's home, and that the weapon's cylinder at the time held no ammunition of any kind.

He also said it was this gun which, according to the ballistics test, fired a bullet dug out of the box-springs section of Ruff's bed.

Reference was again made to the possibility that another principal, yet unidentified, was involved in the shooting.

Ammer touched upon this possibility while explaining why Ruff's mother and a sister remained so long in a barricaded room after the victim's wife left the premises.

A window in the bedroom used by the mother and sister gives in daylight a clear view of the farm lane down to the highway—Route 23.

Ammer said the two women did see the car being driven down the lane, but "feared another person may have been driving it while Mrs. Ruff was still hiding in the house."

AMMER SAID the mother and a sister waved clothes in the window in a futile effort to attract the attention of passing motorists on the highway. Failing in this, he said, they waited until daylight when they attracted the attention of a school bus driver who had come to pick up Danny.

The bus driver entered the house and the women then came out of the room, Ammer said.

The prosecutor said Mrs. Ruff, upon her arrival in Columbus, remained at her mother's home for an hour or so and then went for food.

While she was away from her mother's home, Ammer said, Mrs. Ruff phoned Attorney Paul Adkins in Circleville for advice. On her way back to her mother's home she was arrested by Columbus police.

In stating she "doesn't remember" the shooting, Ammer said, Mrs. Ruff added she seemed to have suffered a "blackout."

Deputy Recovers Stolen Truck And Nabs 3 Escapees

A stolen truck and three young escapees from the Bureau of Juvenile Research in Columbus were rounded up in one fell swoop here Wednesday.

The roundup was by Deputy Jim Diltz, who caught up with the youngsters and the truck at about 10 a. m. Wednesday on Route 23 north of Circleville.

Diltz said he was called out to investigate three youths who were walking along the highway. On the way, he spotted a truck which had been reported stolen late Tuesday from Columbus.

After rounding up the youngsters, ages 15, 15 and 14, Diltz said they admitted having stolen the truck and driving toward Circleville. They escaped Monday from the Columbus BJR.

Diltz said the truck was undamaged, but was abandoned when it ran out of gas. The teen-age boys are being held for Columbus authorities.

A class of eight Circleville high school girls were graduated from the school's driver training course Tuesday, eligible to receive their driving permits.

The graduates were Beatrice Bass, Mary Blue, Betty Cunningham, Charlotte Hoffman, Joanne Kerr, Marion Maynard, Alice Minor and Addie Wertman, all seniors.

Certificates entitling the youngsters to receive their driving licenses were issued by State Patrolman Bob Greene. The course is taught by Al Gabriel as part of the high school curriculum.

Flu Outbreak Now Believed To Be Waning

COLUMBUS (AP)—The widespread outbreak of mild flu and other respiratory infections appeared to be waning today in most sections of the country.

A nation-wide spot survey showed that flu-like diseases were on the decline in at least 16 states, with only three states reporting a sizeable increase.

Elsewhere, respiratory infections were running near normal for the winter period.

The survey indicated the outbreaks have been more distressing than dangerous. In most cases the illness lasts only three to five days. Very few deaths have resulted.

Infections appeared to be increasing somewhat in Kentucky, Alabama and North Dakota.

The Kentucky State Health Department said it has reports of 11,564 cases in 12 counties.

In southwestern Ohio, schools were closed in South Lebanon, Franklin and Blueball in Warren County, and 20 per cent absenteeism was reported in Lebanon schools. In Brown County, Ripley and Higginsport schools were closed Tuesday for the rest of the week because of flu.

In Middletown, Holy Trinity school was closed Tuesday until Monday, but in other schools the number of absentees appeared to be declining.

All public and parochial schools in Massillon will remain closed this week. About 20 per cent of the city's 6,000 pupils were absent.

2 Gas Wells Continue To Stump Firemen

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Weary men battling two multimillion-dollar offshore gas wells worked doggedly today to complete a metal boom to yank away a pipe spouting flaming gas dangerously near three other wells.

The boom was started after more than 30 shots from a 75-millimeter recoilless rifle failed to blow away the 11-inch-thick steel pipe. More firing was scheduled today but the strategy was switched because the wind was expected to shift and endanger the platform from which four Army infantrymen were firing the rifle.

One of the wells exploded Sunday and the other caught fire Monday. Both are on a wooden platform erected on pilings driven into the Gulf of Mexico 10 miles from the Louisiana coast and about 90 miles southeast of New Orleans.

If the metal boom doesn't work, two other plans are on tap.

The first would be to place the 75-mm. rifle on a boat and move in on the target from upwind for another try.

The second would be to drill another well and tap the burning well at its source about 10,000 feet down in the earth. A spokesman for the Pure Oil Company, owner of the burning wells, said this probably would take from four to six weeks.

The roar of the rifles sounded like 100 freight trains and the night sky was so bright a newspaper could be read a mile away. The glow could be seen 18 miles away.

British Youth Hangs Despite Plea To Queen

LONDON (AP)—A 19-year-old Briton was hanged today for a murder shot he did not fire despite a dramatic 11th-hour appeal for his life to Queen Elizabeth II.

The youth, Derek Bentley, took part in a holdup in which a policeman was killed. A companion, who actually fired the fatal shot, escaped with an indeterminate prison sentence because he was only 16.

Bentley was hanged at grim Wandsworth Prison in the suburbs of London while a booing, shouting crowd demonstrated outside.

He went to the gallows despite an appeal by his friends to the Queen that she override her Cabinet advisers and stay the execution. Earlier, Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe had rejected clemency pleas signed by more than 200 members of Parliament.

The fatal shooting occurred when Bentley, dull-witted son of an electrician in suburban Croydon, was arrested on a rooftop with a 16-year-old friend, Christopher Craig.

Craig cut loose with a gun, killing one policeman, while another officer was holding Bentley.

Bentley did not carry a gun in the robbery attempt but under British law responsibility is shared by all who participate in such a crime. The jury which convicted Bentley, however, recommended mercy in his case.

Solons Slow In OKing Bill On Finances

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Judiciary Committee seems to be in no hurry to consider a bill to require members of Congress to file financial statements.

Even the bill's author, Rep. O'Hara (D-Ill.), said he wasn't too optimistic about its chances, "although I can't see why anyone would be against it."

Chairman Reed (R-Ill.) of the judiciary committee was noncommittal, but other committee sources indicated there would be no stampede to consider the bill.

The O'Hara bill would require senators and representatives to file annually with the clerk of the House and the secretary of the Senate an accounting of their gross income, including its sources.

They wouldn't have to disclose where they got the money, other than to list it under such general headings as legal fees or fees for speaking engagements or compensation for businesses in which they have an interest. The author said business secrets thus would be protected.

Big point—the reports would be a matter of public record and open to newsmen.

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his first talk to the nation on foreign policy last night, new Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was simple and vague but hintful.

Although President Truman and his Secretary of State Dean Acheson made some nationwide explanatory addresses on foreign policy they might have won wider support by explaining it oftener, and particularly if Acheson had pitched what he said on a simpler plane.

Dulles may have felt they missed the boat in not doing more and simpler explaining. His talk was extremely simplified. He conducted his TV-radio audience on a tour of the continents, showing what Communism was trying to do and why it had to be stopped.

It was when he got down to how this country was going to stop Communism that Dulles became unspecific but frankly said he did not intend to go into details, that he had been in office six days and did not know all the answers.

Until now Dulles, in last night's talk, and President Eisenhower, in his inaugural address, have both spoken of foreign policy in only general terms. Being so new in their jobs, neither could be expected to unroll a victory blueprint this early.

But if what both of them have said so far could be reduced to one sentence, this might be it: In the fight with Russia this country needs Allies and will help them. That was the basic policy laid down by Truman and Acheson.

Eisenhower and Dulles backed that basic policy in the presidential campaign but criticized it as not having been effective enough. How they intend to vary it or improve it is something they'll have to reveal later. Perhaps Eisenhower will lift the lid a bit when he delivers his State of the Union message to Congress next Monday.

Dulles did hint that Eisenhower may have some plans for taking the wind out of Russia's sails when he said: "We shall try our best to stop the wars...in Korea and Indochina. Today these wars go on because the enemy thinks he's getting an advantage by continuing the war. I believe that Gen. Eisenhower will find the ways to make the enemy change his mind in that respect so that they too will want peace."

Dulles may have been suggesting this country will increase its aid to the French who have been fighting the Communists in Indochina for years. But just what kind of help this country intended for its allies was something they could only guess at from Dulles' talk. "You can count on us" was about the most emphatic he allowed himself to be.

He repeatedly said "enlightened self-interest" will be this country's foreign policy guide. But again he left the rest of the world to wonder about the extent of his meaning when he said:

"Our job is to serve our own enlightened self-interest by demonstrating by our own performance, by our own examples, how good freedom is and how much better it is than despotism."

He gave one severe nudge to the British, French and Germans by saying that unless they are willing to do more for themselves by providing a unified front against Russia, this country may not be so willing to help them.

So, although Dulles went into a great deal of detail explaining the menace of communism, he avoided details in explaining how to combat it.

The Truman-Acheson foreign policy was called "containment," meaning to keep communism from spreading any further. Only time can show whether Eisenhower and Dulles can think of a way to go beyond containment and actually roll communism back without war.

Truman To Shun Talk Invitations

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman plans to turn down all public speaking invitations for the next several months to avoid risking any unnecessary political strife.

He said Monday he wants to carry out his promise to co-operate insofar as possible with President Eisenhower. Truman said he first wants an opportunity to observe the actions of the new administration. He also said that reports he had completed negotiations to have his memoirs published were not true.

True-Blue Grouch Gives Touch Of Sanity In Our Time Of Woe

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—The optimist gets too much credit in this world—and the grouch doesn't get enough.

When the going gets really rough who wants a companion the fellow who always chirps, "There's a bright side to everything."

He's downright depressing. Give me the guy who insists no cloud ever had a silver lining. He's more fun to be with in a long haul.

Nobody really trusts a man who has a smile that won't rub off, no matter how bad his troubles. You begin to feel that he just doesn't have common sense. He is like a punch-drunk fighter jumping up and down in a brain-fog saying, "Look, ma, he didn't hurt me."

It is foolish to praise these pseudo-optimists who greet every disaster with a cheery, "well, everything happens for the best." They are actually not optimists at all. They are stupid fatalists wearing a death-head grin.

Far better is the man who refuses to take anything in stride. It is the true-blue grouch who provides the saving touch of sanity in our time of woe. He gives us a sense of perspective in our most dismal moments.

To the true-blue grouch nothing

ever can be right. God, nature and the hand of man are ever raised against him and those with him. The entire universe is in a gigantic and endless conspiracy to defeat him and his buddies.

Such chronic grippers serve a wholesome purpose. In an Army outfit often the most popular soldier is "the artful complainer." He is sure that everything is absolutely wrong—the food, the ammunition, the officers, the combat mission, and the scoundrel in the rear zone who is holding up his mail so he can open it and read it himself.

If a cloud even shadows the horizon, he announces dolefully, "when it rains, it pours." His favorite phrase is a gloomy, "I knew this would happen."

The artful complainer is a safety valve. He is the articulate spokesman of the self-pity everyone secretly feels. There is a majestic poetry in the way in which he grumbles the smallest molehill into a big mountain of injustice.

His boot strap snaps, and he holds it aloft, muttering: "That's the Army for you. They expect a man to win a war with a broken boot strap."

The troops break out in a belly laugh. The artful complainer has done something for them no over-optimist ever could—given them a comic insight into their own self-pity. They know that, bad as their plight is, it couldn't be as bad as the chronic gripper describes it.

In civilian life the true-blue grouch plays the same healthy role. His vast sense of personal injury over trifles lets us laugh at ourselves. His acid attitude is a needed tonic against the hyper-optimists who would have us believe against all reason that life can always be surgery sweet, sweet, sweet.

Whenever I feel depressed I go to an old friend and ask: "Tell us, do you see any reasons for general optimism?" "Why, of course not," he says, scowling. "There never were any reasons—there never will be."

As he is a happy and balanced man, this lifts my spirits immediately. And I leave him feeling sure the world is better than I thought.

3 U.S. Authors Being Honored
NEW YORK (AP)—National Book Awards, made annually by the book industry, were presented last night to Ralph Ellison, Bernard DeVoto and Archibald MacLeish for the most distinguished works of 1952.

MacLeish, 60, former librarian of Congress, won the poetry award for his "Collected Poems, 1917-1952."

DeVoto, 55, novelist and historian, won the nonfiction prize for his "The Course of Empire," which traces early exploration in America.

Ellison, 38, a Negro writer from Oklahoma City, received the fiction award for his novel, "Invisible Man," a story of the struggles and problems of a young Negro in modern America.

Weather probably boosted the grass and legume product prices. Dry weather in 1952 cut production and limited supplies of hay, hay silage and seed.

Corn, wheat, oats, soybeans and apples all dropped in price. Prices of milk cows dropped $30 a head. Hogs were $1.50 less a hundred and beef cattle $7.20 a hundred less on December 15, 1952.

Other products important in Ohio and price drops for them are: lambs $6.40 a hundred; veal calves, $4.60 a hundred; chickens, one cent a pound; turkeys, six cents; and wool 15 cents a pound.

The only way farmers made money in 1952 was to produce good yields of both animal products and crops. Individual farmers used this method to reduce cost per unit, although total costs were higher, and to increase gross income although prices were lower. The fact that about 70 percent of Ohio's farm income came from livestock last year indicates the significance of the prices.

NLRB Sets Aside Timken Election
WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board Tuesday set aside a labor election at the Newark, Ohio, plant of the Timken-Detroit Axle Co., and ordered a new election.

The board ruled the company made threats against the CIO United Automobile Workers Union. The board said the company told its employees it would move the plant unless the AFL International Association of Machinists won the election held last April 2.

South African Chief May Get Decree Power

CAPETOWN, South Africa (AP)—Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan has asked Parliament to vote him extraordinary powers to suspend laws and govern by decree whenever the government thinks public safety or order is seriously threatened.

A bill to accomplish this was published yesterday after its introduction in the South African House of Assembly, Parliament's lower chamber.

Debate on the bill is scheduled to begin next Monday in the House, where Malan's Nationalists have a majority. The government majority apparently assures adoption of the legislation.

The bill empowers the governor general, at the government's request, to proclaim the state of emergency upon action, or threat of action, by anyone seriously endangering public safety or order.

The governor general also could declare a state of emergency if, in his opinion, the ordinary law of the land is inadequate to assure public safety.

Proclamation of the emergency state would empower the government, or its designated agents, to suspend almost all laws.

The legislation stemmed from widespread opposition to the Nationalist policy of strict racial segregation and the campaign by non-white organizations of systematic violation of segregation regulations.

Milk Haulers, Dairy Named In OPS Suit

TOLEDO, O. (AP)—Federal attorneys have filed in U. S. District Court civil actions against 11 milk haulers and a dairy in the Upper Sandusky, O., area, asking treble damages of $17,358.82.

Attorneys for the Office of Price Stabilization said the defendants raised from 41 cents to 45 cents the rate for hauling 100 pounds of milk, without obtaining approval from OPS.

The Chief Dairy Products Co., Inc., of Upper Sandusky, was named a defendant on the ground it continued to charge an increased rate after a hauler had raised the rate. Treble damages of $1,059.90 were sought from the dairy.

Other defendants from Upper Sandusky, and the amounts sought, were: Lawrence Smith, $1,189.19; Herbert Hale, $1,697.04; Lloyd J. Gwinner, $1,153.62; Paul Swartz, $1,701.21; Paul Rife, $1,721.79; Frederick Newell, $232.90; and William Loney and Eugene Long, as partners, $1,512.78.

Other defendants from the area, and the amounts sought, were: Dale McDaniel, Sycamore, $1,645.71; Lawrence Brooks, Carey, 2,892.72; Charlie Grmharbour, Sycamore, $1,774.62, and Paul E. Ropp, Forest, $773.34.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans have found they can take over more than 2,100 postmasterships immediately and are going to start making the appointments soon, it was learned today.

GOP senators have asked the Post Office Department to check on the number of posts now filled by acting postmasters. The figure already has topped the 2,100 mark with two states to go.

Former President Truman named acting postmasters for some of the vacancies, but the new administration will send up its own names for the jobs.

ACCELERATED EDUCATION
SEVERAL PROMINENT EASTERN educators are joint authors of a prediction that it may soon be necessary to accelerate high school and college educations by eliminating a year from each.

This would reduce the traditional four-year high school term to three years and do likewise for the typical four-year undergraduate college course.

These experts, who have jelled their collective thoughts within the covers of a collaborative book, believe that both civilian and military pressures make such an educational speedup unavoidable. They urge school systems and colleges to organize experimental programs to ascertain what happens to youngsters who will have completed their education before they are old enough to vote.

Except for the unusual student, who now is permitted to breeze through high school and college in less than the appointed time if he has enough on the ball, a shortened program is likely to prove to be of dubious quality. Education is not merely a means of absorbing facts and ideas and forming principles and attitudes.

Education is also a process of maturing, of growing up, and the student must be psychologically and socially prepared if what he learns is to stick with him. Perhaps accelerating the educational timetable is a step that is rapidly becoming unavoidable. But it should be avoided as long as possible.

PEEPING PERCY
SO THERE'S A British scientist who is popping his eyes out trying to see around the edge of the moon! The moon, don't you know, likes the earth so much that she keeps only one of her sides turned toward it.

H. Percy Wilkins of the British Astronomical Association has about as much chance of getting a look at the other side of the moon as he has of conversing with a man made of green cheese. But the moon does mysteriously sway and dip just a little bit. This truly feminine action permits him to see a tiny bit more of her than she usually allows men to observe.

Under such a pressure of curiosity, Mr. Wilkins' imagination went into high gear. Using what knowledge he had of her frontal contours, he has made bold to map her from the rear. But he had better not be too positive about what he sees or thinks must be there.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — The spirit of restlessness prevailing among Capitol Hill Republicans, especially on the House side, contrasts strangely with the fact that their party now controls the government and enjoys the fruits thereof after 20 years of famine. A stranger in the galleries would be justified in concluding that the Democrats had been the victors.

This attitude of concern is understandable from a human as well as from a political viewpoint. No more than a score of GOPsters in Congress ever had any dealings with a Republican President or with the White House establishment.

In fact, no more than that number have ever visited 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue except to attend the "Congressional brawls" given to the legislators each social season. To them the "President's mansion" is as awe inspiring a shrine as it is to the tourist from Oklahoma.

OLYMPIANS — Moreover, Eisenhower is not merely another easy-going politician or fellow Republican. He is a world figure, who has walked with dictators and monarchs, and commanded the greatest armies in history.

These Days

What most of the world sought in Eisenhower's first Inaugural Address were signposts of a new foreign policy. Most of the chancelleries of Europe will be deeply puzzled by what they have found, because the nine points on the subject permit contradictory interpretations.

For instance, Point One, which is anti-war, adds a new phase of policy:

"... we stand ready to engage with any and all others in joint effort to remove the causes of mutual fear and distrust among nations, so as to make possible drastic reduction of armaments."

Does "any and all others" mean Spain, the Argentine, Formosa? The test is stated to be sincerity of purpose, but what is the test of sincerity? Can such a moral quality be judged among governments?

The abjuration of appeasement is Point Two. We shall not "bargain (by) trading honor for security." Is that to be accepted as a renunciation of the China Policy of the State Department? Is the Marshall-Acheson policy, which dominated American official thinking from Teheran to the white paper on China, rejected forevermore? What effect does that have on our relations with Great Britain, which favors appeasement of Russia in Asia? Is this Eisenhower's reply to Churchill?

I do not understand Point Three in its relation to our foreign policy. It seems to be a virtuous thought stuck in out of context. However, Point Four is a promise that while we recognize nationalism as a noble trait, it is not the intention of our government to turn all the world into Americans. This would be a reply to the Russian propaganda that we are an imperialistic nation that seeks to impose its ways, manners, ideas, and goods upon all people, including, according to the Russians, American movies and Coca-Cola. However, the recognition of nationalism, by the words "identity" and "heritage," is another rejection of the abject internationalism of the Truman era.

Point Five must really frighten the Europeans. Eisenhower promises aid but he limits it to "proven friends of freedom," which could omit India, which, thus far, has only proved its friendship for Soviet China. However, there are also these words: "... Likewise, we shall count upon them to assume, within the limits of their resources, their full and just burdens in the common defense of freedom." This is a challenge for the Europeans, who have gone very, very slow with NATO to come across with their share of the bargain. If they are combing these words as finely as I am, they might worry over Point Five. Maybe, that is what it is intended to do.

Point Six somehow contradicts Point Four. In Point Four, it was that we were not going to impress upon others our political and economic practices. But in Point Six, Eisenhower said:

"... we shall strive to foster everywhere, and to practice ourselves, policies that encourage productivity and profitable trade."

Six thousand persons died in London as the result of fog and smoke so far this winter, but there has been no intimation the British expect Uncle Sam to do something about it.

By Ray Tucker

Not even the oldest member on the "Hill" would venture to wrangle with him over patronage or legislative problems, possibly excepting Senator Taft.

His official family, consisting of millionaire businessmen, industrialists and bankers, are also Olympians. Few members will have the nerve to lay their district difficulties before executives who have managed the nation's greatest corporations and financial institutions. They would probably draw blank stares when they tried to explain that a certain minor appointment or regulation might mean their defeat in November, 1954.

To use a plain figure of speech, the Republicans at the eastern and western ends of Pennsylvania Avenue were born on different sides of the political railroad tracks.

From the standpoint of party harmony and human relations, it will be an exciting spectacle when the politicians and the plutocrats try to bridge the great gap that separates them.

It will present a more delicate diplomatic job to Eisenhower than when he had to handle such primadonnas as de Gaulle, Gen-

Hidden Causes Of Baby Deaths

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
WE read about sudden deaths of infants almost every day in the newspapers. Usually it says the baby suffocated to death. We are discovering, however, that there are usually other hidden causes when a seemingly healthy baby dies suddenly, without warning.

Of course, every once in a great while some babies may have suffocated when they were caught underneath the bedding. But it has definitely been proved that it is hard for a child to die in this way unless it is seriously weakened in the first place.

The True Reason
When an infant appears perfectly healthy, yet dies suddenly, we want to find out the true reason to guard other infants and rule out the danger of neglect by those in charge of the child.

At one time many of these sudden deaths were blamed on a disease known as status thymico-lymphaticus. It was believed they were due to a disorder of the thymus, a gland located in the chest, underneath the breastbone. With our present knowledge, as shown by careful post-mortem examinations, there is no reason to believe this gland is in any way responsible for these deaths.

As for the many deaths blamed on suffocation, studies by authorities have shown that suffocation is rarely the cause and the deaths are usually due to some other factor, such as infection.

In one study it was found that most deaths that had been blamed either on suffocation or status thymico-lymphaticus were actually caused by an infection. A disease of the lungs was present in 80 per cent of these infants.

Try, Stop Me

For a brief spell at the 1952 Democratic convention, Senator Kerr of Oklahoma was figured to have an outside chance for the presidential nomination. One pundit allowed as how he'd never be able to carry the border states. This irked the senator no end. "I'm getting tired of hearing about border states," he declared. "In fact, I don't know what the term means. I'd like to remind people that all states have borders. Can you imagine a more embarrassing situation for a state to be in than NOT to have one?"

The Neighbors

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX
HATTIE HIGGINS plainly was not satisfied with Deborah's explanation of why Will Brent and Susan would not be at the supper. She was opening her lips to ask more when Almira Coggin came through the door from the kitchen. "Hasn't Reverend Wendell come yet? Everything's ready—we might as well sit down and eat while supper's hot."

At that moment John Wendell came in. He looked tired, grave. "Sorry I am late—I was hoping you were not waiting."

"Sit there at the head of that table, Reverend Wendell," directed Almira Coggin. "Everything's ready."

He went to his appointed chair, stood behind it. The others pulled out chairs. Deborah found Martha Purdy next to her, Clare at her other side. Agnes Peely sat across the table from her. The young people came in, gathered around a table at the end of the room. Bill was one of them. Deborah smiled as she watched him slide away from two giggling girls, slide awkwardly into a chair, almost knocking it over as he did so. Willie had been like that at that age, clumsy hands and feet, hair that would not stay smoothed down. And Deborah sighed, thinking of Willie as he was now.

"Those are my two boys with Bill," informed Martha Purdy. "They get along very well, the three of them. They were planning to go camping for two weeks up the river—Wait was going to rent a tent and a boat for them. But now Bill's working at the plant it's all off. I'm afraid. Unless..." She gave Deborah a quick, inquiring look.

"I could persuade his father..." Deborah shook her head. "Not a chance! My brother started to work in the plant when he was sixteen, so he thinks Bill should do the same."

Martha Purdy gave a little sound of impatience. "That's like everyone else in this town! They wouldn't ever think of doing things differently, for a change! I told Will that maybe it would be a good thing for something to happen here that would shake them up good and hard, just once! But nothing will!"

"Is Silas bad?" Ham Higgins asked John Wendell.

"He's gone. He died before the doctor got there. I stayed with him."

"Well, he was close to eighty, wasn't he?"

"He's had that bad heart for years."

Now everyone was served. Almira Coggin, as chairman of the supper committee, took the chair next to John Wendell. "If you'll say grace, Reverend."

John Wendell repeated words of thanks in a grave, clear voice, then sat down.

A few moments later Deborah saw his glance move swiftly along the table. Was he looking for Susan? Then his eyes reached her, a surprised, pleased smile broke the gravity of his face and he lifted his hand high in a salute. It was his answer to his housekeeper's warning, perhaps indiscreet on his part, but she loved him for it and waved her hand back to him.

Hattie Higgins looked from her to John Wendell and then down at his plate. With some abruptness she said, "Mrs. Brent! Bill says you have a young man staying with you. A foreigner. A writer. Is he any relation?"

A committee of one, appointed in the kitchen, perhaps, to "find out," Deborah remembered what Will had said. She was aware that the women within hearing had stopped eating to hear her answer.

She felt herself stiffening but met Mrs. Higgins' challenging eyes squarely. "Yes, Rom Barcek. He's Polish and he is young and he had a book published two years ago. No, he is no relation—just a very good friend."

A little too quickly and breathlessly, as if she were throwing herself bodily into a breach, Agnes Peely cried, "We've never had an author right in Sweethome, have we? If we got up a silver tea or something perhaps he'd read from his works! Anyway, you must bring him to the Commemoration Service, Mrs. Brent! There's going to be special music, you know."

Deborah thought of Rom as she had left him; then that she must reward Agnes Peely. She said, "I've been told that you are arranging a very lovely program of music."

"Well, I'm doing my little best!" At that Hattie Higgins turned a punishing look on Mrs. Peely. "You think so, Agnes, but I'm going to say right here and now that I think it was a mistake your letting—leaving the sopranos out of that part of the oratorio. After they've worked so hard on it. They don't like it and I don't blame them. Of course we all know why you did it!"

For a moment Agnes Peely's face quivered like a slapped child's. Then some defiance came into it. "It's really much more effective—one voice singing that part. That was the reason I made the change. I explained that to the others. And we all want it to be just as lovely as we can have it."

Huge Supplies Send Farm Product Prices Down Again

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (U)—Prices of farm products are skidding again. It even shows up in lower prices on some items at the grocery.

The reason: Huge supplies.

Almost 30 per cent more wheat on hand than a year ago. Corn supplies up almost one-tenth. A record number of cattle fattening in the nation's feed lots. Farm stocks of feed grains 10 per cent bigger than last year.

So, many a farmer is wondering if the history of the twenties is to be repeated. Back then the farmer had his own private depression before it started for the general public.

That's what is back of all the ruckus now in Congress.

Some congressmen from the farm belt want to raise the level at which the government supports farm prices.

Others think the government

Maumee Conservancy Area Judges To Convene Sept. 15

DEFIANCE, O. (U)—The 15 judges of the Maumee Watershed Conservancy District will convene Sept. 15 to act on appointments for appraisers and to appoint replacements for members of the board of directors whose terms expire then.

The judges, who comprise the conservancy court, met in Defiance Monday to receive the district's annual report. They adjourned without taking action on any of the appointments. They did, however, select Judge H. B. Mullholland of Defiance presiding judge

Russ Airplane Strength Is Said Growing

PARIS (U)—New information has boosted Allied estimates of Russia's jet plane strength to 8,000 aircraft—3,000 more than American military intelligence agents figured only a few weeks ago.

This was revealed Monday night by a top-ranking U. S. Army officer, who said the new information was picked up recently by American agents. These reports said the Russians had stepped up their jet production considerably.

The size of the Atlantic Allies' combined jet fleets is a military secret but it is believed to be a great deal less than the Soviet Union's. To counter the Russians and their satellites, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization hopes to build eventually an air force of 4,000 planes.

The informant said the Russians are believed to have a total of about 20,000 "high quality" warplanes of all types and an air force of half a million men.

The Soviets, he added, also have stepped up their airbase building program all along their western frontier and in the European satellites—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania.

"They have built 70 to 90 bases along that frontier, and they are stocking them with jet fighters," he declared, terming this a "very big threat against Central Europe."

The Western Allies have built or are building a string of 95 airfields across Europe, including 30 already set up in West Germany.

If the crushing strength is divided by the density, wood is stronger than steel, but steel has a greater tensile strength.

should start now buying up foodstuffs to bolster the prices for what the farmer still has unsold.

It's likely to be one of the knot-tiest problems of the early days of the new administration. Farm price support will come out of tax money—at a time when most people, including farmers, are crying for economy and tax cuts.

But if farm prosperity goes sour, little by little it might spoil the boom for all the economy.

City folk think the price of food is still too high. So firm is this conviction that it has little effect to tell them—as all connected with the food industry are constantly doing—that the cost of farming, of transporting foodstuffs, of processing and packaging food, of distributing it, and of selling victuals at the grocery, all have gone up in recent years. The city man still thinks he pays too much to eat.

The farmer, on the other hand, is well aware of the rise in his operating costs. He knows how expensive modern farming is—the machinery, the fertilizers, the sprays, the labor. He also knows the spread between the price he gets for foodstuffs and the price the consumer pays at the store.

And with present weakness in farm prices, he sees his income shrinking. The golden decade when all the world wanted his produce and was willing to pay ever increasing prices for it seems to be drawing to a close.

Export demand for American farm products is off. Production of crops—given reasonable weather—increases right along. Now surpluses are piling up.

First to feel the effect of this are the prices the farmer gets. But wholesale prices are down now, although to a smaller degree. Higher operating expenses cut further into this, but retail prices are lower on many food items than a year ago.

The farmer's expenses haven't dropped as much, if any. In many instances the price of the things he sells have dropped below parity with the cost of things he must buy.

Under the law the government supports the price of many farm products at 90 per cent of this parity.

Some congressmen are now urging that the government raise the support to 95 per cent of parity.

Veterans Seeking McCarthy Probe

CHICAGO (U)—The American Veterans Committee has asked President Eisenhower to order a Justice Department investigation of the affairs of Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The AVC's national planning committee, at its quarterly meeting, said in a resolution it was "shocked" by a Senate subcommittee's report that McCarthy banked $170,000 in four years while earning $60,000 in pay and expenses. The subcommittee investigated charges by former Sen. Benton (D-Conn) that McCarthy was unfit to sit in the Senate. In its report, the group drew no conclusions regarding McCarthy's fitness.

Mayor's Cases Total 1,488 Through 1952

"Driving left of yellow line" was the accusation heard most often before the court of Mayor Ed Amey during 1952.

Arrests for that violation topped all others, totaling 300 for the 12 month period.

In all, the Mayor heard 1,488 cases during 1952. Amey explained that total is listed on his books, and added:

"Of course it doesn't include the many trivial disputes that always have to be settled over a period of time. Relatively unimportant neighborhood arguments and so forth have to be settled, but they're too small to be put on the books."

RANKING second in the number of cases heard were 209 on accusations of intoxication. In third place were 186 cases resulting from intoxication with disorderly conduct included.

Speeding motorists were responsible for the fourth highest case total—172. And 153 reckless drivers made up the fifth largest group of violators.

The drunken driver group ranked next—104 for the year.

Hot July, with its Summer tourists and traditional tendency toward short-tempered ways, had more cases than any other month. A total of 184 cases were heard by the mayor in July, including 64 for crossing yellow lines and 29 for speeding.

The breakdown indicated law-breakers started the year off slowly. January, with 84, had the smallest monthly total of cases, and the February total—86—ranked next lowest.

Sokolsky's These Days

How is this fostering to be done? Shall we show them how we do it or shall we underwrite their failures? If we show them how we do it, we shall impress upon them the value of capitalism as an incentive for productivity; if we underwrite their productivity, as Acheson did for the British Socialists, we are not really making them healthy. Point Six requires clarification.

Point Seven is very important. It reaffirms NATO, but goes further. It recognizes a similar possibility for the East of Asia, Latin America and the Arab states. It seems to me that Point Seven will encourage those who have lost faith in the United Nations as an instrument for peace, to cultivate alliance-by-treaty, which has been the standard method of international intercourse throughout history. This is likely to be the most important point of them all.

Point Eight might be called The Genocide Point and is not establishable by facts. It acknowledges all races, peoples and continents as enjoying an equality which in fact can be statistically disproved.

The term equality is avoided, but the rejection of inferiority can only be an acknowledgement of equality. Yet, no steel is produced in Africa, just to take one item.

Point Nine is the United Nations one, which is designed to restate that we belong to it and will continue to make sacrifices for it.

This is our restated foreign policy in outline. It will be important to watch how it is implemented in detail.

Sesqui Building Fund Is Slashed

COLUMBUS (P)—The House Finance Committee, turning down a state fair exposition building and an outdoor theater for Ohio State University, Tuesday voted a $255,500 appropriation for the Ohio Sesquicentennial.

The committee's 23 members voted unanimously. Their action cut by $1,340,975 the sesquicentennial emergency appropriation. The state fair exposition building would have cost about $1 million, the outdoor theater about $300,000.

'Damnyankee' Cleric Irks Dixie Vandal

AMERICUS, Ga. (P)—Police are trying to find an anonymous telephone caller who threatened to beat a former Ohio clergyman who came to Americus last summer.

The Rev. Kempton Oakes, 31-year-old former athlete and pastor of the First Christian Church here, said the caller told him Sunday to get out of town after daring him to come down to the corner and fight. He told police the man said he could "beat hell out of damnyankee."

The minister also complained that someone dumped garbage into his new automobile shortly after the telephone call. Police Chief R. M. Cansler assigned officers to investigate.

Last week City Recorder Billy Smith dismissed charges against two of the clergyman's neighbors following complaints by Oakes that they allowed their dogs and chickens to run loose in his newly planted garden.

The minister, who served his church for nine years at Mansfield, O., and surrounding communities, said Monday night he does not intend to leave Americus. He said his anonymous caller may have been drunk.

A-Plant Electric Strike Continues

WAVERLY (P)—A strike of 60 electricians at the Pike County atomic energy plant entered its 9th day today.

The men are striking in protest of what they called delay by the Wage Stabilization Board in approving travel pay requests granted by the Gustav Hirsch Organization, the electrical contractor at the plant.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Since you spend so much time at the telephone, you might as well do it right, lads, and lassies. There are telephone manners just as there are table manners. . . all part of the impression you make on other people, including dates. So why not make it a good impression?

For girls:—1. Resist that impulse to call your favorite date just to talk. Do it only when there's a definite reason for the call. Otherwise he'll think he's being pursued by a too-eager date-maker and so will his family.

2. Suggestion of another date should come from the boy, not the girl. Avoid asking him, "When are you going to call me?" etc.

3. Remember that it's better to end a conversation before it drags on to a point where you both have nothing left to say. Then he'll be more interested in talking next time; there'll be something left to say.

For boys:—1. Skip that "Guess who this is?" routine. It's embarrassing, boring and puts a girl on a

2. Avoid the "Are you doing anything Friday night?" approach. It's tactless and bad-mannered. Begin with "Can you go to the dance Friday night?"

3. If the person you call is not at home, it's polite to leave your name, saying, "This is Bill Smith. I'll call again after six o'clock." And do it!

Pro Football Court Hearing Confusing All Except Judge

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Anti-trust proceedings against the National Football League have resulted in a triple reverse play.

The government produces a witness and attempts to enter testimony and exhibits. The defense objects strenuously. Judge Alan K. Grim listens patiently to the objections for anywhere from five to 10 minutes and then says, "overruled, the evidence may be entered into the record."

It's sort of like a game of cat and mouse. Everyone in the courtroom, judge, defense counsel and the government lawyers seem to have the routine down to a T, and not a T formation either.

In the first two days of this government suit charging the NFL's television and radio broadcast policies are in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, the government attorneys has taken a turn at throwing the ball carrier.

One thing is sure, no matter what type of offense or defense either side uses, they aren't fooling Judge Grim. Judging from the remarks and the questions offered by the judge, it is quite evident he spent last fall watching, reading and studying football from a college and pro standpoint.

He has evidenced a determination to see that both sides get everything into the record that can help him decide fairly this case he has described as "awfully important to the public."

At today's session the government plans to continue its interrogation of witnesses to establish technical data such as the number of TV stations, micro waves, geographical territories of TV stations and research undertakings in determining TV audiences.

The government won an important point Tuesday when Judge Grim admitted into evidence testimony by James Seiler, director of the American Research Bureau. Seiler's testimony was designed to bring out the widespread interest of the public in pro football telecasts.

Glen McFarland hit for 24 points in the tussle to pace the 'Cats, while Bloomington's R. Weaver easily reaped game honors with a total of 38.

Jackson's reserves suffered a fate similar to its varsity downfall, losing by 53-35 in the evening's opener.

Tigers Lose By 56-40 To Chillicothe

Circleville high school's Red and Black Tiger basketball team Tuesday night lost its second decision of the season to Chillicothe Cavalier cagers, losing by a 56-40 margin in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Tiger courtmen opened strongly against the invading Cavaliers to rack up a 10-8 edge in the first frame, although dropping to a 35-23 deficit at the half.

Chillicothe sharpshooters came on then, posting a 38-30 advantage in the third stanza and moving into the final 16-point margin of victory.

Don Skinner paced the Tigers in scoring during the contest with a total of 15 points, with Chillicothe's Stevens winning game honors with 18 counters.

Circleville's reservists dropped a 44-38 decision to the Cavalier subs in the evening's preliminary, losing in almost the same fashion as its varsity crew.

THE CHS reserve team opened its encounter with a 9-8 lead over the visitors, only to drop behind by 24-17 at the half and trail by 36-27 at the three-quarter before taking the final six-point loss.

Dave Greeno was tops in scoring for the Tiger subs with 14 points, tying with Chillicothe's Schuler for game honors.

Sesqui Queen Rhubarb Still Boiling Hot

YOUNGSTOWN (AP)—Directors of the Youngstown Junior Chamber of Commerce refused Tuesday to recognize Miss Janet Bailey, 19, of Akron as queen of the Ohio Sesqui-centennial.

They based their decision on reports that Miss Bailey's victory as queen of the year-long celebration of Ohio's 150th birthday was a mistake, that the rightful queen is Miss Martha Zimmerman, 19, of nearby Salem.

The contest, sponsored by the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, was conducted in Columbus Saturday night.

In a telegram, the Youngstown directors suggested Miss Zimmerman at least be made a co-queen until the matter is straightened out. The resolution was sent to Edwin F. Frantz of Cleveland, one of the three contest judges and secretary of the Ohio Civic Improvement Committee of the junior chamber.

However, Charles Ball, head of that committee, who missed the contest because of illness, announced in Cleveland that he had talked with all three judges and was convinced Miss Bailey won. He said the incident was closed, barring some strong new evidence.

Besides Frantz, the other judges were Robert C. Wheeler and Johnny Jones, both of Columbus. Wheeler and Frantz insisted no mistake was made. Jones said, "no comment."

A source close to the contest said Jones and Frantz voted for Miss Zimmerman and Wheeler voted for Miss Bailey, and that the wrong winner was announced by Robert Holmes of the Columbus Jaycees.

Wallace Issues New Warning On Route 23 Bypass Debate

Move By State Could Break Long Deadlock

Legislator Believes Route 104 Might Steal Spotlight

Another decide-or-else warning on the Route 23 bypass question was placed before Circleville officials Wednesday by Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative.

His new statement, though phrased only as another urgent reminder, lacked some of the velvet in his recent announcement that Circleville's bypass project is "losing priority" in Columbus.

Wallace emphasized the deadlock here can be broken through a special act of the legislature, in view of the vital importance attached to Route 23 as a link between Columbus and Pike County's atomic energy development.

"However, we don't want to take such action," he said, "as long as City Council appears to be in the process of making up its mind on the issue. The desire, if at all reasonable, is to let the decision come from within the community itself."

"BUT IT IS still apparent that the importance of this matter is being buried in some manner at Circleville. It cannot wait much longer in this long deadlock stage."

"If continued delay adds to the threat of moving plans for the new highway over to Route 104—instead of Route 23—it's obvious some action will have to be taken in the interests of this community."

"The legislature can take that action, and the steps are already well defined."

In general, Wallace said, a special act of the legislature could put the question into a referendum for relatively fast decision.

"We may be forced to take such action," he continued, "to prevent the bypass, in effect, being located west of the city on Route 104. It may turn out to be the only way we can keep the bypass around the western edge of Circleville, and thus avoid major damage to local business interests."

"I feel we're very fortunate in having the proposed bypass on our side of the Scioto River."

Center of the long-stalled dispute is a state offer to build and maintain a bypass around the western side of Circleville if the city withdraws a portion of its corporation line to make that legally possible.

THE CITY'S efforts to sound out sentiment on withdrawal of the corporation limits have been stalled so long that backers of the bypass plan privately charge organized opposition has been formed among property owners.

A third possibility is mentioned among bypass proponents. In addition to the state's suggestion and

Benson Plans Announcement To Clarify His Ag Program

By OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson says he will have further "important announcements" this week on his plans for streamlining the Agriculture Department.

Introducing newsmen to aides he has appointed to help him run the department, the new Republican farm chief promised additional information soon on his plans for cutting costs in the department and for increasing its efficiency.

This information is expected to go a long way toward answering questions raised when Benson, in his first official act, announced last Wednesday a regrouping of the department's 20 bureaus in four groups.

Benson has said that he will be guided by a desire to save money and to take the government out of agriculture to the fullest extent possible permitted by the interests of the nation and of the farming industry.

Many queries about Benson's plans have come from farm-minded congressmen, some of whom have been critical of the new secretary because of his refusal to go into detail at a recent Senate Agriculture Committee hearing, about what he intends to do.

British Airliner Engines Checked

LONDON (AP)—The British Overseas Airways Corporation says its grounded fleet of 10 stratojets will be flying again in a few days.

BOAC announced American aircraft experts, flown here to inspect the liners' Pratt and Whitney engines, had determined faulty lubrication caused the 15 engine failures which resulted in grounding of the planes Jan. 22.

The line's announcement said suspicions of sabotage had been ruled out.

the steps outlined by Wallace, it is believed the state might be induced to accept the city's "consent"—if granted here—to put the bypass through the western side of the city area.

However, when this plan was first studied, state highway department officials warned the city would have to meet a substantial portion of the costs under such an arrangement. And councilmen later seemed convinced Circleville can't afford such a plan.

State officials have given no encouragement to the hope they would accept the "consent" procedure and waive the city's financial responsibility.

Wallace quoted S. O. Linzell, state highways department director, as follows:

"We haven't any money at this time for the bypass project. We can't get the money until we have a plan. We can't have a plan until the matter is straightened out at Circleville."

Rubinstein Wins Round In Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—Serge Rubinstein, rich Russian-born financier, is safe from being taken to Ellis Island at least until Feb. 27.

The U. S. Court of Appeals, dividing 2-1, late Monday ordered that no steps be taken toward seizing Rubinstein pending further arguments in his case. This was the fourth time in four weeks the court had intervened to prevent Rubinstein from being taken into custody on a deportation warrant growing out of his World War II conviction of draft dodging.

Ike Aides Delay Oil Firm Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration Tuesday delayed for 90 days a grand jury investigation into an alleged world oil monopoly.

This was done to permit the new attorney general, Herbert Brownell Jr., to give further consideration to the case.

U. S. District Judge James R. Kirkland signed an order, requested by government counsel, putting off the grand jury investigation.

Lima Hospital Aide Suspended

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Jesse E. Estep, recreation therapy supervisor at Lima State Hospital, has been suspended for 30 days, the state civil service commission was notified Tuesday.

Hospital Superintendent Dr. R. E. Bushong told the commission Estep was being suspended because of "being arrested and charged with aiding the escape of two patients Dec. 31, 1952."

Estep is alleged to have given the patients his ward keys and then driven them to Huntington, W. Va., after they escaped. He has denied this.

County Co-Ops Plan Annual Meeting Here

Plans have been completed for the 1953 annual Pickaway County Farm Bureau and Pickaway Livestock Co-op meeting.

This is the biggest event of the year for the two organizations. The meeting is set for 10 a. m. Saturday in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum. All indications point to a larger turnout than the 600 who attended last year.

Chester Noecker of Ashville, chairman of the program committee, said that an outstanding and enjoyable program has been planned for the day.

The committee has secured Mrs. Litta K. Roberson, Ohio Farm Bureau woman's director, and the Rev. Howard E. Mumaw of Broad Street Methodist church, Columbus. The Rev. Mr. Mumaw has traveled throughout Europe and will address the members on "Let's Keep America Free."

SPECIAL MUSICAL numbers will be given under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Dunkle, and the Salt Creek Township High School band will play under the direction of Wilbur Shaw.

The 1953 Pickaway County Farm

Bureau program will be built around the resolutions and policy adopted by the members during this annual meeting.

There will also be reports of progress through the year, discussion of plans and election of directors for the Pickaway Livestock Co-op and the Pickaway County Farm Bureau.

Mrs. Leora Sayre, home demonstration agent and chairman of the barbecue committee, said plans are completed for the annual Farm Bureau "Bar-B-Que" to be served at noon.
